

name; itachi uchiha.

age; 21.

ethnicity; japanese.

series/canon point; naruto shippuden / ep 339. status is dead.

inventory/misc;

- n/a.
- starting weapon is a sword.
- my itachi is (nearly) blind!

gender/prns; demiboy, she/he.

personality; itachi is an independent, silent, and seemingly aloof individual. her quiet and mellow nature is deceiving in the fact that itachi is always three steps ahead and very perceptive, able to flip on a switch thanks to her rigorous training in the ANBU. she's been contemplative and mature even from a young age, and a pacifist at heart because of her hatred for the way the world was. despite her bloody, gruesome, and dark path he has taken, itachi has always, always prioritized his goal of peace. as all other uchihas, itachi loves deeply; above all, he cares for his brother more than anyone in this entire world. but his way of distancing himself for his goals muddled his deep well of love for sasuke, blindsided by guilt for killing their entire clan except for him. she has always carried the world on her shoulders since she was little, raised with high expectations by the clanhead and a prodigy from the get-go. so it is inevitable when itachi grew up to become so cryptic, reserved, and so expectant of silent suffering. on her second death, she was able to put her regrets to peace at last and was able to move on; but if it weren't for the reanimation jutsu, itachi's secrets and true, final words she would have wanted to say to sasuke would have died with her.

backstory; itachi was forced to experience the grim reality of war before he even hit age 5. the trauma induced from witnessing the sheer bloodshed and cruelty had made him a pacifist, a determined one at that. she would work tirelessly in her training all for the sake of that dream. sasuke was born the next year, and the year after that, she was enrolled in the academy. not even a few months in, however, she was skipped straight towards graduation. she continued to work hard, gaining an appreciation for the beauties of the world and insight from danzo that further encouraged her perception and ideologies. a mission had gone wrong with his team, slaughtering his two members, and thus awakened his sharingan; so soon after he talked about his lack of them with izumi. within the same year, he mastered his sharingan, and completed the chunin exams all on his own. she joins the anbu at age 11, the youngest as of yet, and ends up working with kakashi for two years before being assigned a new partner. as time went on, his father had begun to encourage itachi to spy on konoha for intel and information for an eventual coup from the uchihas, and at the same time, was requested by the council to give intel about his family.

torn, itachi ends up becoming a double agent. her and shisui, who had become close friends years ago, realized true peace could never be accomplished after their mutual betrayal of the village, yet worked towards it anyhow. shisui's own attempts had wound himself up in trouble, with danzo stealing one of his eyes. his final moments were spent with itachi, who he had given his remaining eye and a wish to protect the village and clan, before he had killed himself; this awakened itachi's mangekyo sharingan, and a fire within her ignited. her father continued to push for a peaceful coup from the uchiha clan, especially once she revealed her awakened mangekyo sharingan. when the council was informed of this information, the hokage wished to negotiate things, but danzo pushed for a cruel ultimatum for itachi: support his family in the coup and watch everyone be killed, including sasuke, or slaughter his clan before the coup began and keep sasuke safe. itachi chose his brother.

she slaughtered the entire clan with the help of tobi before disappearing with him, beginning her life as a member of the akatsuki.