MORGAN DUCARD

"Nobody's listening."

BIO

Morgan Ducard was born from the unlikely union of Henri Ducard, a world famous man-hunter, and Felicity Strode. Despite rarely seeing his father, Morgan loved and idolized the man. His love for his father would be put to the test, when he overheard the truth about his mother.

Felicity Strode was a member of a terrorist cell, who had wormed her way into Henri's life in order to kill him. But something she didn't expect happened: she fell in love with him, and found herself unable to carry out her task. It was only when her son was threatened that she agreed to kill Henri. Morgan overheard this, and before his father came home, killed his mother.

He convinced his father that they couldn't rely on anyone but themselves, and so they became a father-son team of contract killers and hunters. Eventually, Henri and Morgan would come into contact with Bruce Wayne, who wished to learn from Henri. He obliged, and so, Bruce joined them. Morgan and Bruce developed a rivalry, culminating when Henri tasked his son with killing Bruce to tie up a loose end. He obliged, and shot a sniper bullet through Wayne.

Bruce survived, and hunted down Morgan, beating him to a bloody pulp before throwing his mangled and broken body in front of Henri. He was quick to disown Morgan after that, and he was on his own. He would take his skills and become a living ghost, appearing to kill criminals and others he deems guilty, making it look like they were never around in the first place. He turned himself, and by extension them, into nobodies, which is where his alias of Nobody came from. He believes that Bruce's mercy is a weakness, and that he has lost sight of the mission, but Morgan will fulfill that, and burn down the Wayne name as well.

[Morgan is headcanon based and canon compliant since he's only ever been in eight comics. I also want to make it clear that I am UNWILLING to write a redemption arc for Morgan Ducard. He is a manipulative, violent sociopath who, despite targeting legitimately evil people, is motivated by spite and hatred of the Wayne family. He also physically and emotionally abused his daughter in the hopes of turning her into another "Nobody" like him. He's legitimately not a good person, and I am going to be reflecting that in how I write Morgan. If you don't wanna interact with him, then I will not force you to, but if you do, you must keep these truths in mind.]

REVENGE

The Lu'un Darga had always hated the Al Ghuls and their ilk. This hatred had persisted for centuries, and was further when the youngest of the Al Ghul clan. Damian, had thwarted the most recent of their schemes.

Vengeance was to be had, and the boy would need to be taken out of the equation entirely. But how? Why, take the one sin he can't atone for, the one sin that haunts his every waking nightmare, and spit it back out at him. And like that, Morgan Ducard was reborn, a plague upon Damian. And Morgan returned with one goal and one goal only; to act on his lust for vengeance.

There's a catch to his return, however. While he is unstoppable by most, due to the dark magics which keep him living, two surefire ways exist to kill Morgan Ducard for good. The first of which requires for his killer to repeat the deed, while the second requires the blood of his blood to kill him.
