

Project title

[Change title and delete all guidance in brackets. You may add subheadings to each section as you see fit. The maximum for the project description is 5 pages, References are not counted in this page limit.]

Statement of the problem

[A clear statement of the research problem and its significance to psychology and law]

Background and aims

[Overview of the relation of the problem to the state of the field: a concise overview of the relevant empirical literature, theoretical background, and/or law related to the research problem]

Method

[A detailed description of the methodology and analytical strategies to be used. Although not required, applicants are encouraged to include an Open Science Practice Statement (or plan) with their application]

Significance

[Anticipated contribution: a brief description of the significance of the project within the field of psychology and law]

References

[You can use the “No Spacing” Style of formatting to format your references. This is just a sample to show you what the style looks like]