

Immigrant Student Inclusion and Solidarity Resources

San Francisco State remains steadfast in our commitment to maintaining a safe, supportive, and inclusive environment where every Gator can thrive.

Immigrant and international students face challenges and uncertainties that can negatively impact their emotional well-being and academic success. We have put together these resources for our campus faculty to draw on, in their teaching and learning and use in the classroom, as they see fit. We recommend you share these resources with all your students, either on your Canvas pages or on your syllabus so students who need these resources can access them and feel supported.

Here are some repositories where you can find comprehensive information on current immigration policies, student rights and opportunities, and the legal challenges faced by immigrant students:

1. National Immigration Law Center (NILC)

- The NILC provides resources, including guides, toolkits, and policy briefs on immigration laws and policies affecting higher education. Their Higher Education Toolkit is particularly useful for understanding the opportunities and challenges faced by immigrant students.

2. US Department of Education

- This site provides information for immigrants, refugees, asylees, and other new American students and families.

3. California Department of Education

- This page provides a reminder to immigrant families about children's right of access to public education and resources that educators across California may benefit from reviewing. Also provides statewide resources on legal services and social/emotional support.

4. Higher Ed Immigration Portal

- This portal offers a wide range of resources, including bill summaries, blog posts, explainers, fact sheets, and policy briefs. It covers federal and state policies impacting immigrant and international students' educational access and success. You can explore their resources here, including information for California.
