director / designer / media artist / producer / production / collaborator

Brian Freeland is a director, producer, production manager, writer, sound + media artist, community builder, and at times... theatre provocateur. His works for the theatre are rooted in a collaborative performance and development process that creates theatrical works with words, visuals, sounds, text, story, frame, and non-linear structures.

As a multi-hyphenate artist working with a live performance vocabulary, Freeland's work builds highly stylized community-considered events and stories. Using overlapping disciplines, his work creates layered, aesthetically focused works, often centering around non-normative and socially challenging subject matter.

In addition to his creation work, he has advocated for artist-led place-making and has shepherded the creation and management of multiple independent arts venues.

Mr. Freeland is currently in development for the new works, hung + burned (a mythology of power and politics) and well as collision ≠ isolation (a media exploration of the science and discoveries of Marie Currie).

Direction and design credits include works for The LIDA Project, Curious Theatre Company, The Brick, Mind The Art Entertainment, Ping Chong & Co., Universes, The Public Theatre, Countdown to Zero, THEATREWORKS, About Face, Catamounts, Town Hall, Lone Tree Arts Center, The Avenue Theatre, The Aurora Fox, HERE Arts Center, Su Teatro, and Shadow Theatre Company.

In 1995, he founded The LIDA Project, the regionally acclaimed performance art ensemble, where he served as artistic director until 2015. In 2007, he co-founded with Julie Rada, Countdown To Zero, a political theatre collective. In 2024 he launched the production company February 30 along with Mix Tape A/B, an experimental performance ensemble. He was a 2022-2023 member of the Orchard Project's Greenhouse Labs cohort.
