

Shawna Moore is a dedicated educator of 20+ years. Her passion is ensuring all students have a caring adult they can rely on in their educational setting, as well as educating professionals about the power of relationships and human connection. Her goal is to educate all educators on the importance of ensuring all students are seen, heard, valued and championed. She is currently the Student Success Dean and the Puget Sound Skill Center in Seatac, Washington. She is one of the few educators that has taught in 5 of the 6 levels in the educational system: Elementary, Middle, High School, Higher Ed and now CTE. She is an athletic coach of Track and Volleyball, peer mentor for her building and the Highline School District. She also holds the position of Vice President of her Association. She is the cadre lead for CRCM Equity Trainings (Culturally Responsive Classroom Management), Carde Lead for FCS 01/06 (Fundamental Course of Study). She is a WEA Culturally Responsive Trainer, as well as a Lead for the RECN (Rainier Educators of Color Network). Prior to teaching Shawna spent 22 years in the Navy supporting and defending our country. Her motto is...You only have two jobs in this lifetime, inspire someone to be better than yourself and leave the world better than it was given to you. Shawna double majored in her bachelors in Early Childhood Education and Elementary Education, as well as a double major in her Master's in Master Teaching and Curriculum Development. In addition, she is endorsed in Fitness and Health as well as a National Youth Mental Health Trainer.
