COACHES PROFILE

Jamie Sutton

Jamie has been passionate about speed skating since the age of 10. He has proudly represented New Zealand at multiple Oceania and World Inline Speed Skating Championships, before transitioning at 17 to short track ice speed skating. During this time, he trained and competed internationally, including World Cups and World Championships, while living and training with the Australian Olympic team.

Alongside his own skating career, Jamie began coaching while studying Physiotherapy, leading the junior New Zealand short track team. Today, he works as a sports physiotherapist with experience across Olympic and professional team sports.

Jamie brings both high-level athletic and medical expertise to the rink, with a strong focus on helping young athletes develop, achieve their potential, and enjoy skating for life.
