We declare June #StolenChildrensMonth!

This is for [their name].

[Your words. Your story. Your anger. Your love for them.]

They were stolen by [system]. Their story belongs to them, and we refuse to let it be erased.

This June, during @stolenchildrensmonth, we're reclaiming the narratives that systems tried to erase, through the family policing system, the ICE Machine, youth incarceration, private adoption, and forced treatment facilities.

Ashley Albert, founder of @stolenchildrensmoth, said it plainly at the fifth annual @blackmothersmarch.

From slavery to 2026, from the womb to the tomb, Black children are being stolen. And the government has spent generations building a narrative to justify it.

Stolen Children's Month exists to dismantle that narrative. We are calling out every system that steals children: family policing, ICE, deportation, youth incarceration, foster "care," private adoption, and all other systems of family separation.

Corey Best (@miningforgoldcommunity), organizer, impacted parent, and steering committee member with @stolenchildrensmoth said what needed to be said at the fifth annual @blackmothersmarch.

The systems that steal children are cracking, because people like us keep the pressure on.

For 256 years, Black mothers were legally forced to care for white children while being told they couldn't care for their own. That lie didn't end. It just changed its name. Family policing. Foster "care." Adoption. ICE. Youth incarceration.
