

I rolled up a piece of paper and stuck the microphones in either end. I then set the middle of the paper roll on fire. I did this in a safe place and put out the fire way before it reached the marked lines. The fire sound is accompanied by the sound of a dryer in the background.