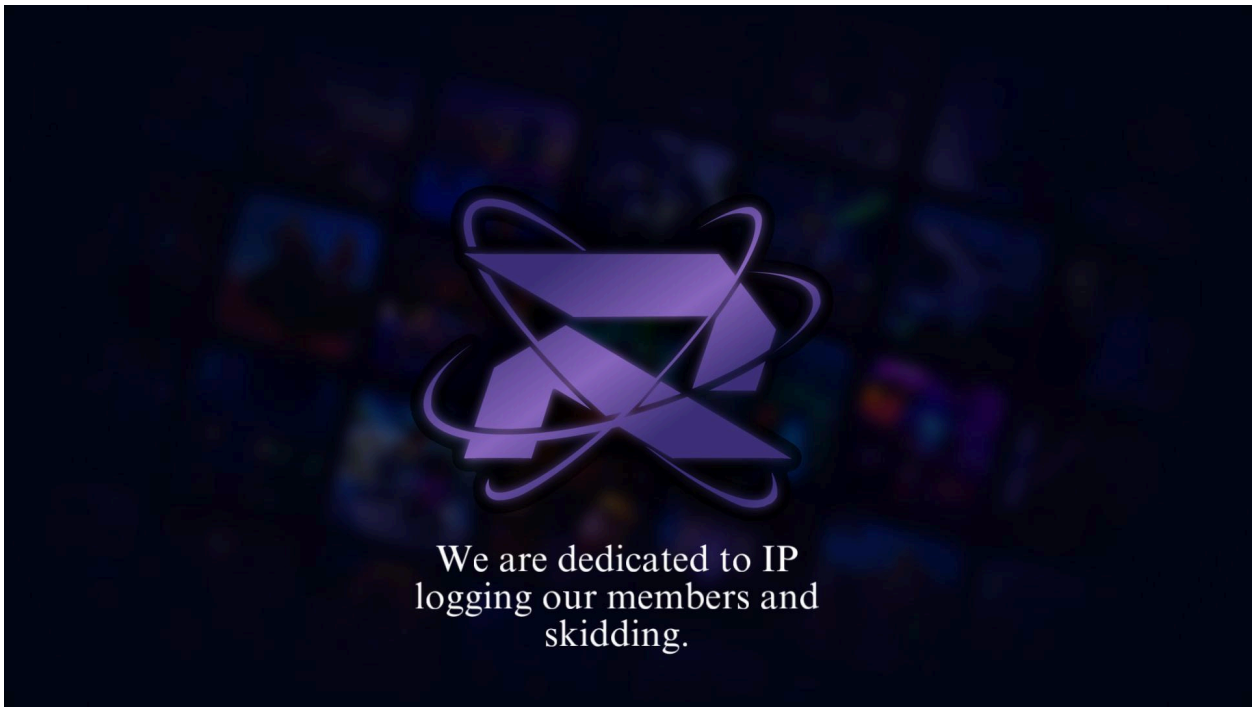
Tab 1



The Truth About Ronix | The Lies You Didn't Know

Ronix once was a well-known figure in the Roblox exploiting community and maintained a fairly good reputation for a time. However, over the years, his behavior deteriorated significantly. He began backdooring his scripts, manipulating friends, blackmailing members, blackmailing members, lying, and coercing people into doing things that they don't want to do. On top of that, he actively logged users' information through his Vaultcord verification system, putting their privacy and safety at risk. And that's only the beginning. In this document, I'll go through screenshots one by one, breaking down each incident so you can clearly see the full extent of his actions and the patterns of malicious behavior he repeatedly demonstrated.

1. IP Logging & Leaking User Data: View This Image Here

Ronix uses his verification bot to collect users' IP addresses under the guise of authentication. Once he obtains this information, he leaks it publicly or to others without consent, putting users' privacy and safety at risk. This behavior has been used to intimidate, harass, and target members of his community. By exploiting his position of authority, Ronix manipulates users into giving sensitive data and then weaponizes it against them. This demonstrates a clear pattern of malicious activity and abuse of trust. IP Leak and Attempted Tracing

2. Ronix Jealousy & Server Nuking: View This Image Here

In this screenshot Ronix (also known as Ronver) is seen talking with Bloxy, one of his ex-staff members. The conversation is about another Roblox executor called Velocity. Ronix was jealous that his own executor wasn't doing well while Velocity was growing in popularity. Instead of admitting this, he made excuses, saying people were mocking him, when really it was just jealousy.

Since Bloxy was respected in the Velocity community, Ronix asked him to get perms and nuke the server. When Bloxy refused, the chat got leaked. After that, Ronix tried to destroy Bloxy's reputation spreading lies, getting him demoted in Hoho Hub and other places, and even making a CW that falsely accused him of being a pedophile all because Ronix had been exposed as a malicious user.

3. Fake sUNC Server & False Accusations: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Nexity (also known as Ronix) is seen in a server you're probably familiar with: sUNC. But if you look closer, you'll notice it's not actually the real sUNC server. Ronix created a fake version of the server and even tried to backdoor a fake sUNC script. When he got called out for it, he told his members to report the fake server instead. That's how he tried to cover himself.

What makes this situation even worse is the excuse Ronix gave. He told people to join and report the fake server by claiming it involved minors, a serious and completely false accusation. The reality is simple: Ronix was jealous. Which is why he resorted to promoting another naming convention called rUNC. (For transparency: rUNC was actually created by Raz, not Ronix. Raz is a good person, don't hate him)

4. Malicious Scripts & Server Abuse: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Ronver (also known as Ronix) admitted that he tried working with Latte. He claimed Latte were "feds" (he's kinda special for thinking that). He also admitted to adding a vulnerability into his own script, basically malware and backstabbing a bunch of innocent members for no reason. Here Is The Video Proof.

After that, he got rejected by Reggie when he tried to join Latte. As usual, he went off crying, raging, and harassing members in his Discord server. He eventually nuked his own server for no reason, then created a new one which he called "Ronix" (after nuking Nexam). From there, he started his new journey of backdooring even more of his scripts.

5. Rejected & Targeted Harassment: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Ronver (also known as Ronix) admitted that he quit both the Roblox and exploiting community for a while. When he came back, he wanted to work with ValeDreamer, who is known as a ratter that steals people's information. That made him seem like the "perfect friend" for Ronix. But when Ronix tried to join Vale's group of ratters, which included Vale, Nevy, and Consist, he got rejected. After that, things only went downhill for him.

What's worse is what he did next. After being rejected, Ronix started messaging people and attempting to spark another CW against Vale. He twisted Vale's words to make him look like a "predator," even though the claims were baseless. This tactic was nothing new for Ronix. It was the same thing he had already tried before with Bloxy. That shows a clear pattern in his behavior.

6. Manipulation, & attempts to obtain confidential info: View This Image Here

Ronver also tried to manipulate Savage, a highly trusted reverse engineer and developer in the community, into revealing private information about bunni.lol before it was publicly known or officially released. He has also been known to leak other people's faces without consent. On top of that, he blocked Savage simply because Savage refused to ban someone in Pulsery for sending an old picture of Ronver's face. This behavior clearly demonstrates Ronver's attempts to control others, exploit sensitive information, and punish people over trivial matters.

7. Misleading Lies about Ronix being undetected: View This Image Here

Ronver has repeatedly lied about Ronix being undetected. This is especially important because users were actively using an exploit they were told was safe and undetected, only to end up getting banned. Misleading the community like this not only causes people to lose access to their accounts, but it also shows a blatant disregard for user safety and trust.

8. Threats & Reputation Manipulation: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Hexxr (another controversial figure) was seen talking to Jake Brock. In the image, Hexxr asked Jake to tell Ronver (Ronix) to make a truce. Honestly, he was right to do that, because who really wants to fight with this annoying 16-year-old? You can then see Jake Brock responding to him directly. That's where the situation started to unfold.

At first, people thought the image was fake. But the truth is, Jake Brock owns Frostware, which Ronix's developer Nop powered. If Jake didn't do what Ronver asked, Ronix threatened to make Nop stop updating Frostware. On top of that, Ronix said he would ruin Jake's reputation for no reason at all. All of this happened just because Jake wouldn't do what Ronix demanded.

9. Malware & Threatening Behavior: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Nexity (also known as Ronix) is talking to one of his members, but he isn't being friendly. In fact, he's scaring the members over a problem with the Nexam executor. Some might call it a "joke," but it clearly wasn't. The member repeatedly asked him to stop lying and tell the truth. Ronix kept lying despite the repeated requests.

Shortly after, the user's Discord account was terminated. Rumors say Ronix accessed the account using the user's token, which suggests the executor was backdoored. The executor was allegedly infected with malware. He also threatened the member using the Nexam Vaultcord, which logs IPs, emails, and locations. On top of that, he reportedly sells this information.

10. Data Theft & Harassment: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Ronver (also known as Ronix) is shown logging IPs and emails. The person he targeted never leaked their IP or email; they had only verified using the Ronix authorization system, which collected their IP, Gmail, and username, all of which Ronix then leaked.

Shortly after, Acevincente (a well respected member within the community) confronted Ronix about it. In response, Ronix started adding him to hundreds of group chats to harass him. He also began boasting about himself, claiming, "I am a high-level authority figure," which he clearly isn't but whatever helps him sleep at night. Here's The Image As Proof

11. Doxxing & Threats: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Kronos (also known as Ronix) makes it clear that he was doxxing people. He is now going by Kronos, which shows this is recent and proves he hasn't changed. He doxxed a Polish member in his server who was doing nothing but questioning him. Ronix DM'd the member and threatened him directly. This shows a pattern of targeting users who disagree with him.

Thankfully, the Polish member was able to reach out to us for help. We guided him on what to do to stay safe. Keep in mind, this member was only 16 years old. Ronix was threatening and blackmailing him for no reason. All of this happened simply because the child disagreed with him.

12. Ronix Potential Exit Scam & User Risk: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, Kronos (also known as Ronix) talks about discontinuing Ronix and leaving the project, which is essentially an exit scam. We've seen how he ends his projects before he either nukes them or uploads malware for members to download. Afterward, he harasses his members and disappears for weeks before returning. This pattern makes it clear that his actions put users at risk.

His past behavior with Nexam caused thousands of users significant problems. This is especially important because our goal is to prevent further harm, no member should suffer simply because he decides to nuke a server or distribute malware. It also highlights why trusting him with any projects or responsibilities is extremely risky.

13. Jealous Raids & Deception: View This Image Here

In this screenshot, you can see Ronver (also known as Ronix) telling his members to raid WEAO (WhatExploitsAreOnline). He did this out of jealousy because they didn't want anything to do with him. As usual, he then purged his messages to play the victim and act like he did nothing wrong, when in reality, he is clearly guilty.

Afterwards, he DMed the owner, pretending he hadn't done anything, and started crying in his staff's DMs most of whom now dislike him. He's a weirdo that nobody really likes, and that's the truth. I honestly don't understand why anyone still supports him.

TL;DR: Ronix is a highly irresponsible and egotistical individual. His repeated malicious actions, ranging from logging IPs to registering others emails on pastes demonstrate immaturity and a complete disregard for his large Discord userbase of over four hundred thousand members. While he was once relatively chill, after he gained recognition from his skidded exploit, it appears to have fueled his ego and corrupted his behavior. This is a stark reminder of how fame can so easily warp even the most ambitious minds.

There is a possibility that this CW may go unrecognized, or if it does, Ronver may attempt to spread falsehoods about those involved in documenting this CW. We are putting our reputations and V3rm accounts on the line with this, and we expect nothing more than for the community to respond by warning others about Ronver's malicious actions.

If you're looking for reliable and safe exploits, use tools verified by Voxlis.net, a community-trusted source. Voxlis ensures the exploits are safe and legitimate. They offer tools that support iOS, Android, and Windows. Always stay cautious, keep tools updated, and avoid anything requesting unnecessary personal information. Using verified sources helps protect your accounts and data.

Be careful of users who behave maliciously like Ronix (Ratnix). Some people may try to log your IP, steal information, or spread false accusations. Always verify individuals before trusting them, check rbdatabase.live or rbdb.xyz to see if anyone has a history of bad actions.

This CW is ongoing, we'll be updating it with more information soon.

So what next?

Well, it has come to our attention that Ronix is already preparing a rebuttal. The fact is, Ronix has followed the same formula time and time again whenever he is called out, he dismisses every piece of hard evidence as "fabricated" and then pivots to attacking the authors of the exposal. These attacks rarely contain a genuine defense and instead rely on distortion, misinformation, and even the spreading of personal information.

This is a well documented cycle, and we fully expect the same response to be directed at us. Consider this a sincere warning, what's coming will not be clarity or truth, but more of the same misleading tactics he has relied on in the past. Nothing he says should be taken at face value.

PS: It is also expected that Ronix will attempt to leverage his "500 thousand members" as a means of giving his rebuttal instant popularity and credibility. This is simply a tactic to drown out criticism with numbers, not with truth.

Just wait and see what's coming. If Ronix attempts to defame us, let him but he should know this, it will backfire, and the damage to his reputation will be far greater than anything he tries to throw our way.

THX FOR READING! BY AUREIX, ACEVINCENTE, AND CLARITY, THANKS TO ALL THE CONTRIBUTORS!