

We are 25% of the way through the regular season here in Mays, and I have decided to revive the Quarterly Power Rankings that I started during my first go-round here...since the last time one of these was published, the Louisville Sluggers have added a pair of World Series trophies to their display case and are in position to make the postseason and bid for a third straight crown. Let's take a look at the teams that are in the best position to unseat them:
