Good evening Dixie!

Y'all probably know me as your former Senior Senator and the President Pro Temporary of the Senate. Due to a ballatory mix up by the Democratic National Committee at the time, my name was switched with Presidential hopeful Scribba. He ran a fierce campaign but due to election improprieties, he was unable to clinch my seat.

Under normal circumstances, I wouldn't run against Jorgee for this seat. He has succumbed to the Dixie Curse. Some prominent moderate Democrats flirt with the Republican Party, pretending to act with good faith. The more they interact with them and their ideals, the deeper they fall into the rabbit hole. I hope we can pull Jorgee back to the light, but for now, he cannot continue to occupy a seat that was won with the Democratic Party's apparatus.

I look forward to a fair and honest primary against PoliticoBailey. If I'm to win, Jorgee, I am coming for the seat.
