

Rewrite “My Grandma Talley”

“My Grandma Talley” is a warm and story about Kincaid and her grandma. Kincaid loved her Grandma Talley very much, and they made a bunch of unforgettable memories, like baking cakes, climbing up the tree, fishing with bamboo poles. All of the happy memories she kept in mind. But she had to move out the state to California because of her mama’s jobs. Going to a new place and making new friends were too scary to Kincaid, but her grandma told her that “Things work out, most time better than we expect”.

Then grandma and Kincaid walked back to the room and limped toward the hall closet. Grandma opened the closet and searched through stacks of clutter on the closet floor, inside the trunk were old clothes, a glittering jewelry box, family pictures, a huge black Bible, handwritten letters scrawled on paper frayed and yellowed with age, and an ancient quilt. Then, grandma opened the jewelry box and gave Kincaid a roses-color earrings with a matching necklace of rainbow crystal hearts for going-away gift that Aunt Elnora gave grandma for her sixteenth birthday. And then grandma took the quilt and said,” Our family is made up of our ancestors—grandfathers, grandmothers, my mother, father, sisters and brothers”. The quilt was full of family memories, every single piece had different meaning. And the quilt will be passed for generation to generation.

Wherever you go, your loved ones will always be in your heart. I know I am reluctant to give up, and I will cherish this beautiful family heritage.
