

Spoilers Ahead:

Emmary here. I just wanted to note something here just in case people were confused as to why the human couldn't see the listener since the listener could put up their veil like they did in the first NSFW audio. It's simple, really... the listener doesn't think about it. As we saw in the first NSFW audio, they didn't even know how to do it. It wouldn't be their first instinct. Angels in this world can only show themselves as they are to their human and only during a life-or-death situation. So, Solas was right in what he was telling the listener. Could he have suggested pulling up the veil? Absolutely. Was he going to? No, because if an angel saves a human that is not their own, they get reassigned to that human accordingly. Solas is comfortable with the boring human that the listener has. Why? Well, the more boring the human, the more time and energy the angel has... and of course Solas would want as much of either of those as he can take. I apologize for the long-winded explanation, it's just difficult trying to get certain ideas across with pure spoken dialogue and I wanted it to be clear. I hope that one day I can show you all how fully fleshed out I have each of my characters. It just tends to get lost, unfortunately, with this format. Thank you for your time.
