Lauren Arrington is Professor of English and Department Chair at the University of South Florida. She is the author or editor of five books, most recently The Poets of Rapallo (Oxford University Press, 2021) and The Oxford Handbook of W.B. Yeats (2023). She is currently the recipient of a National Endowment for the Humanities Public Scholars Award to support her research for a book about women artists in the United States during the Great Depression. With Emilie Morin, she is series editor of Modernist Constellations for Clemson University Press.

Dr. Zsuzsanna Balázs is Assistant Professor at Óbuda University in Budapest, Hungary. She obtained her PhD in Drama and Theatre Studies at the University of Galway (formerly National University of Ireland, Galway) in 2021. She is a theatre scholar, writing predominantly about W. B. Yeats as well as modern Irish and Italian drama and theatre through a queer and gender studies lens. Her first monograph is titled Queering W. B. Yeats and Gabriele D'Annunzio: Modernist Playwrights (Cham, Switzerland: Palgrave Macmillan, 2023).

Katherine Baxter is a Professor of English Literature and Deputy Faculty Pro Vice-Chancellor (Research and Knowledge Exchange) in the Faculty of Arts, Design and Social Sciences at Northumbria University. An interdisciplinary scholar in colonial and postcolonial studies, her most recent monograph is Imagined States: Law and Literature in Nigeria 1900-1966 (EUP 2019). She is currently working on an international, collaborative project, funded by the British Academy, on comparative desert studies. The project focuses on Somaliland and the Thar desert between India and Pakistan.

Shinjini Chattopadhyay is an Assistant Professor of Modernism at the Department of English and Comparative Literature in the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She completed her PhD at the Department of English, University of Notre Dame, IN, US, with minors in Irish Studies and Gender Studies. She completed her MPhil and MA in English Literature from Jadavpur University, India. She works on British and Irish modernisms and global Anglophone literatures. Her monograph-in-progress, "Plurabilities of the City," investigates the construction of metropolitan cosmopolitanism in modernist and contemporary novels. She is the author of several book chapters and journal articles which have been published in James Joyce Quarterly, European Joyce Studies, Modernism/Modernity Print+, Finnegans Wake Human and Nonhuman Histories (Edinburgh UP, 2024), Virginia Woolf and the Anthropocene (Edinburgh UP, 2024), and elsewhere. She serves on the board of trustees of the International James Joyce Foundation (IJJF) and on the Executive board of the American Conference in Irish Studies (ACIS).

Paul Fagan is an Irish Research Council Postdoctoral Fellow at Maynooth University, where he is working on the project Celibacy in Irish Women's Writing, 1860s-1950s. He is a co-founder of the International Flann O'Brien Society, a general editor of the Journal of Flann O'Brien Studies, and an elected member of the International James Joyce Foundation Board of Trustees. Paul is the co-editor of Finnegans Wake: Human and Nonhuman Histories (Edinburgh University Press, 2024) and Irish Modernisms: Gaps, Conjectures, Possibilities (Bloomsbury, 2021), as well as five edited volumes on Flann O'Brien from Cork University Press, the most recent of which, Flann O'Brien and the Nonhuman: Environments, Animals, Machines, will be published in September of this year. Paul is currently finalising a monograph on Irish Romantic, Gothic and Modernist Literary Hoaxes.

Emilie Morin is Professor of Modern Literature at the University of York, UK. Her research revolves around transnational modernism, forms of political writing, literatures of exile and migration, and the intersections between literature and technology. Her recent books include Beckett's Political Imagination (Cambridge University Press, 2017) and Early Radio: An Anthology of European Texts and Translations (Edinburgh University Press, 2023), for which she translated essays and neglected journalism on early European radio with Marielle Sutherland and Nicoletta Asciuto.