Abstract

The abstract must be written in English, using Times New Roman font, 12 pt, with single spacing. For manuscripts composed in Indonesian, an English abstract is mandatory. It should consist of a single paragraph containing approximately 100–200 words. The abstract is expected to clearly and concisely present the research background, objectives, methodology, theoretical framework, and results.

Keywords: consist of 4-5 specific words or phrases, with each word or phrase separated by a semicolon.

1. Introduction

The introduction must include: (a) the research background; (b) a discussion of the research theme supported by relevant literature, with references from journals published within the last 10 years; (c) an analysis of research gaps or novelty, highlighting unique differences from previous studies; (d) the research problem and/or hypotheses, if applicable; (e) the problem-solving approach, if applicable; and (f) the expected outcomes or research objectives. The introduction should be written in Times New Roman, 12 pt, single spacing.

2. Research Method

This section must provide a detailed and systematic description of the methods used for data collection and problem analysis. Authors should clearly and concisely explain the research methodology and analysis procedures. If a specific method is employed, its name or type should be stated explicitly and supported by relevant references.

3. Result and Discussion

This section presents the research findings and discussion, which may be organized into several sub-sections.. It serves as a literary review of the theme, elaborating on the thesis, antithesis, and synthesis of the topic. The discussion may support the proposed argument with relevant ideas or explore issues arising from different perspectives or concepts. It may also highlight controversies related to the topic to address the goals presented in the introduction. Additionally, the author may introduce alternative viewpoints and expand the discussion by considering secondary factors. The content should be written in Times New Roman, 12 pt font

Research results may also be presented in the form of tables or figures. Tables should be created with a line width of 1 pt, and the table title or description must be placed above the table. If the table description extends to more than one line, it should be written in single spacing.

Table 1. Distribution of Indonesian Population According to Island, 1961–2000

Island	1961	1971	1980	1990	2000	Area (km ²)
Java	65,0	64,2	62,0	60,0	60,1	6,6
Sumatra	16,2	17,2	19,8	20,2	20,2	26,7
Kalimantan	4,2	4,4	5,0	5,1	5,4	27,2

Figures must be inserted into the text, with the image description placed below the image. All images should be numbered consecutively and referenced in the text. If the figure description extends to more than one line, it should be written in single spacing

4. Conclusion

The conclusion must present: (1) answers to the research questions; (2) the main arguments developed in the study; and (3) a critical reflection on the central issues discussed. The conclusion should not merely repeat or summarize the content of previous sections but offer final insights and interpretations based on the findings. The conclusion must contain: (a) the answer to the research question; (b) the conclusion of the findings in the research.

5. Bibliography

This section must include all references cited in the article. The references should primarily consist of scientific journals, accounting for at least 70% of the total sources, and must be published within the last 10 years. A minimum of 15 references is required. References should be written in Times New Roman, 12 pt, and arranged alphabetically. The citation style follows the Chicago Manual of Style, 17th Edition (full notes format). Authors are strongly encouraged to use reference management tools such as Mendeley. Additionally, it is recommended to utilize Grammarly for language refinement and Turnitin to check for plagiarism.
