

How our team feels about body contact

How does your team strive to avoid fouls, contact, and dangerous players? How does your team typically react to instances of excessive body contact from opponents? Are you generally ok with a bit of contact, or do you really dislike all contact?

What it looks like when we celebrate

How does your team celebrate after making a great play? Does your team like to spike? If so, why? How does your team process seeing your opponents celebrating after making a great play? (ie, Do you have any pet peeves about how opponents choose to celebrate great plays?)

How we like to communicate

How does your team prefer to interact with each other and other teams (on field communication between players, leaving it to the captains, etc.)? How do you and your teammates practice showing restraint during contentious situations?
