Who is Sophie & her first video

Sophie Stardrop is a “game director” of her upcoming game called Heartstrings. In the past she used to upload Stardew Valley YouTube shorts which are now private. She started her project by making a video which was a proposal for a new Yansim game.

To explain why people are suddenly making Yansim games, we have to talk about Yandere Dev, Alex. Alex has been working on this game since 2014 and still hasn't finished it. During covid Alex received a lot of backlash for not finishing Osana, which is the first rival. Due to this backlash Dr.Apis showcased his Yansim, which later fell apart as he was exposed.

People were tired of Alex's laziness so they wanted to do it by themselves. However in recent years he has been exposed for grooming. Which was another factor. A lot of YouTubers stopped making videos on Yansim due to this. And because of that a lot of people want to work on a Yansim game.

Of course there's nothing wrong with making a Yansim game, but rather than proposing it, just show us the work you made for the game. Which is what Sophie didn't do. Sophie in her first video spoke about her concepts, which reminder, can change anytime. Not showing any work and only concepts makes it hard to trust the project. As it's only words that can mean absolutely nothing. You cannot just introduce a product with only concepts and no actual game. What are we supposed to expect if we only have concepts and no functional game that shows us the product. Games get revealed once the game is at least playable in some way.

However there's more in Sophie's first video that makes the project less trustworthy. During the video, she stated that no money equals no game. Which raises a question, is this even a passion project?

In short

You give me money to help me and my boyfriend out of financial struggle

I give you the game I first proposed. Made by myself.

People make games for passion not for money. And if Sophie only wants to work on the game for cash there's a risk that the game will get canceled. So you threw your money to her for no reason.

Yansim shit talk

During this, she started to upload videos on Yandere Sim where she was trashing the game. There's nothing wrong with such, but Sophie is working on the same game. It makes it look like she made the game out of spite. The way she's quote on quote "criticizing" the game made her look very narcissistic, making her look like she "knows better". We barely got any news regarding her game. So you can probably make up what that made her look like.

In every single video she calls herself in the description a developer. She is not the developer, she's the game director. So, who's the developer? Her husband. Now, I didn't bring him up earlier because he wasn't important until now. Her husband is a programmer. She stated it herself and even said he can code with HTML (website programming language). Sophie has no experience with coding, so her calling herself a developer is misleading.

If you are curious, there is a difference between developer and game director. A game developer is the one who's creating it and making it a reality. Programmers specifically. And a game director is the one who creates the story, concepts and much more. Which matches Sophie very well.

Let's talk about her experience. She can draw, however she has no experience with game direction. There's nothing wrong with having no experience, but she chose the worst project for such. Yansim game is a hard genre to make especially if you have no idea how to direct it. She clearly doesn't know what she's doing as she made the main character a psycho. Not a yandere but a straight up murderer.

A lot of people might have a different opinion regarding this, but I'm saying this because I experienced it.

When I was 11, I was working on a Roblox Role-playing game. A genre that is actually difficult to make. No experience with game direction. At that time it was a passion project which then became a game made out of spite. I hated Animatronic World. Because of that I fell into the dark and started to steal assets. During that I got burnt out and kept canceling the game. In recent years (2023-2024) I canceled it and wanted to completely forget it.

No experience, failed hard, had dark times and barely knew what I was doing. I learnt from these mistakes and got better. I worked on multiple projects which kept getting canceled, until I created Good Work. A small game. Small tycoon game that had the concept since the start. The development is going smoothly.

If Sophie truly wants to do this, she should have started small, not big.

Money issues

Sophie stated to me that they live off donations from the Ko-fi. Which is a really huge red flag because if that's all you get, there's no way you'll be home for long. She also stated that the Yansim videos are made because she needs the YouTube revenue. That doesn't excuse her

@SophieStardrop • 1 day ago

If the videos become self sustainable, then yeah, I would love just making those.

I'm going to ignore Matthew, since it's clear they don't understand that I can't pay rent or food with only 25 dollars (which is what we gained in donations last month) though. I already spoke about this so I don't have to repeat myself. Remember she probably doesn't make much cash, so the fact that she adopted a cat, yes a cat, for the money is concerning. Both of them are jobless and apparently Noone wants to hire him due to him not having legal paperwork. What? Did he enter the country unregistered? She never stated the reason as to why.

Her husband could have done commissions, but because he's working on her project now, she needs to find a job for herself.

Hobby vs Job & Game build 1 and 2

Sophie stated that it's her hobby, but her actions make it the opposite. She's hiring voice actors and volunteers. Of course for free. It can't be a hobby if you are hiring people. It's a job at this point. Two of her employees left already. We do not know why.

Sophie hoy a las 9:45

It is with a sad heart I say this, but I hope you can respect the decision taken by both parties.

Katia and I decided to part ways in HeartStrings. She will be leaving the programming volunteer team. The reasons are private and I would appreciate it that can be respected.

Just wanted to talk about the game honestly. It's been a rough week. I want to work on the dialogue scripts so the VAs can practice a bit more, but sadly real life responsibilities sometimes suck. Anyways, have this little fumeko drawing I made as a stress relief.

Her first public game build is very underwhelming. It barely has the mechanics a Yansim game needs. Especially if it was in development for 2 months. This looks more like a week's progress or a month. This means that this game is going to take ages to finish. Her second game build is slightly better but it still doesn't have everything. The male elimination is lazy. Not replacing the death animation for the male is lazy especially if you literally added them.

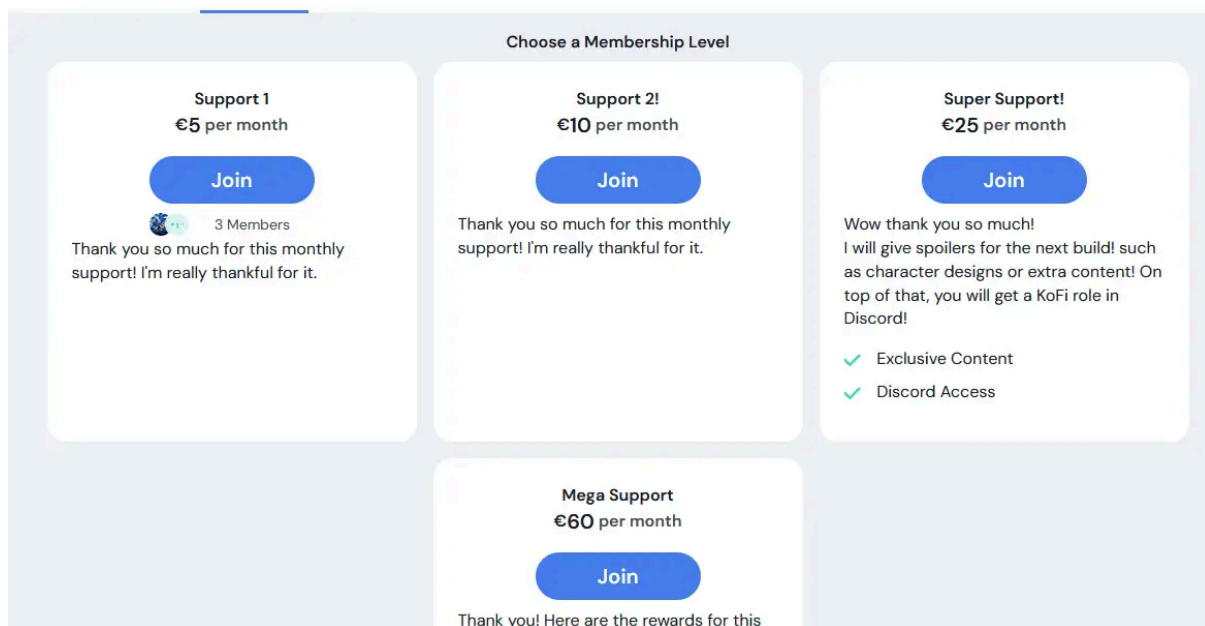

The upcoming UI isn't great either. Too big, looks weird, inventory on the left for no reason, telling us the weather for no reason and probably much more.

Her elimination animation is straight up stolen from Among us. It's not even inspired, it's the same. If you like the idea then find a way to make it more unique. This just looks really uncreative.

Misleading Ko-fi subscription

As I was looking at her Ko-fi, I noticed that her subscriptions mention Discord access. The Discord server is available for everyone, anyone can join for free. The subscription instead mentions in the description a Ko-fi role. She's misleading people, which can be called a scam.

She actually did change this recently, but she still didn't change it for the last subscription. She didn't apologize either. If you're promising something that isn't even true you should apologize.

The false sabotage

Sophie made a video that flamed up to r/osana where I, icy_Sentence made a post about her, explaining the hatred and drama. The drama itself was her claiming that Alex stole her OC design to Raiburu, which was proven to be false. The design of the current Raiburu is based on the chibi. Because of this, her allegations of Alex grooming her got sandwiched. Now, with the messages she showed, we cannot say she got groomed. Yes, it's weird, but it didn't lead into anything sexual. Yes baby dev is weird, but there's nothing sexual. There's not enough solid proof and it sadly makes her look like she did that just so people would feel bad and trust her more.

Sophie's secret VTuber career

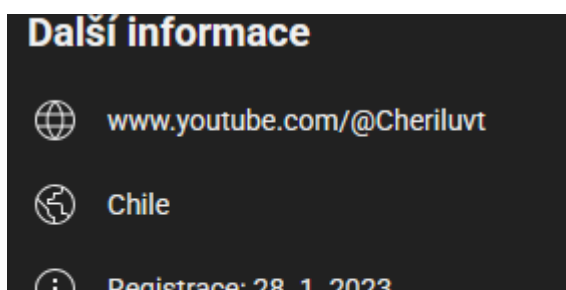

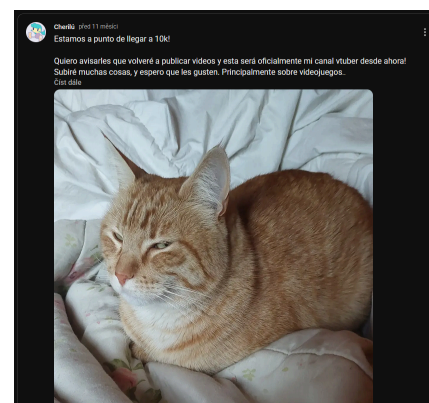

Recently, someone on CharChar's YouTube video mentioned that Sophie used to do Spanish videos as a VTuber.

I decided to search these up and found two of them that sound like her. CookyePhoo and SmolDidi. If this was truly her, it would lead to a question as to why she is suddenly asking for money. I have my own beliefs and I do not think that Sophie is actually broke. Regarding CherryCraft, there's this video.

This video has in the description Twitter of @CherryCraft, which no longer exists (just like her channel) and the YouTube directs to Cherilú, this channel has another channel which is VirtualCherry. Cherilú and VirtualCherry are the same person. And sounds like Sophie. There's another channel that is based off LoL \(League of Legends\) and it has a description url that leads to the now deleted Twitch Account. Cherilú has a community post of a ginger cat, and who has a ginger cat? That's right, Sophie. Because Sophie never showed the face of the cat it is hard to tell if it is the same, however both are green eyed (She drew the cat with green eyes). This isn't all. She's still active on her Cherilú account and even streamed recently. This is Sophie as in the description the country is set to Chile. And Sophie is in Chile.

On CharChar's video, a manager of Sophie's other channel, Nori just commented.

 I can confirm she is all of them. I was her manager, and she still owes the company over $500 for her PC, which she will probably never pay

Is there any way you can prove this? Don't get me wrong. I believe you and I don't think you'd put something that's false with an account with that many subscribers, but I'd still like to see evidence if possible

@NoriReacciona wow that's crazy. You literally still have access to the account? I almost can't believe this is real

Would you mind doing an interview with me? I was also someone who has been criticizing her. It would be awesome if we exposed Sophie for being a scammer.

If she owes a company the money, it means that this isn't the first time she scammed someone. There's also this comment.

 @AmatistaCosmica před 11 hodinami
I don't know who passed that information on but I have passed it on to someone else but she has always done a lot of identity changes. She even stole equipment from the vtubers company where she was and still owes money to owozu's boss. She was also actually fired being NoriVT for her mental instability and saying in a live show that she was going to take her own life, the boss said that they called the family and everything was false, she was safe and sound.

@anikat384 Not really, at least not as Nori. She worked for Uwuzu during her vtubing days as Nori (Fun fact: She owes money to them and also stole many assets)

As a sidenote, Uwuzu itself was crooked too, but yea I guess one thing doesn't really cancel the other

Q&A with her past manager

I got in contact with her past manager, back when she used to do VTube stuff. Here's everything I gathered from the almost 2 hour long call.

It came to my notice that Drakeout has his own allegations (Pedophilia, Abuse, etc.). It is your choice to believe him or not.

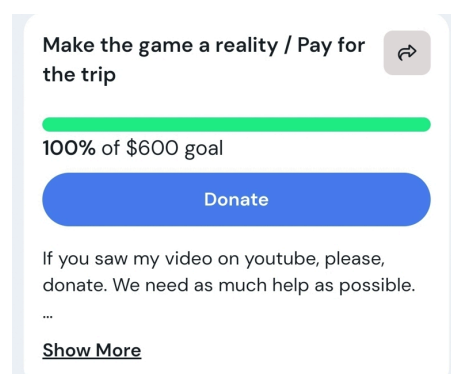

Questions:

1. Since you were Sophie's manager, how did you become one? Are you a part of the Owozu company?
2. Why was she fired from NoriVT? Was it because of her mental instability?
3. Has she ever said that she is struggling financially?
4. If she didn't pay the PC, why didn't Owozu take legal action?
5. Are the other channels a part of Owozu?
6. Someone on reddit said that as CherryCraft she participated in harassment campaigns against another vtuber named FuelVt, do you know anything about this?
7. Was there any drama with her?

Answers:

1. He has been a manager for the company for a while. They then later made the agency and Sophie got in as Nori.
2. She has been fired due to her behaviour. She broke the contract several times and they had to cancel the graduation (graduation is when a Vtuber leaves) because she was threatening them with suicide. The suicide never happened. He has also stated that she's a paranoid schizophrenic. Apparently she had episodes in which she talks of being harassed by dead people.
3. During her job, she was paid well and she was earning enough to live for a YEAR. She's struggling now because she has no job. She tried to work with MC Youtubers but failed.
4. She didn't pay the PC, there was a whole different contract for it. She was supposed to pay but she got away. She got away with it because she escaped to Columbia, to her husband. Because of that she cannot be sued as she "doesn't" live there. (Chile).
After that, they went back to Chile. Her husband is an illegal migrant.

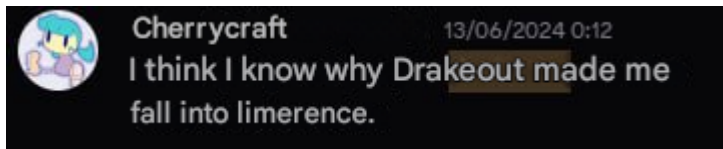

Her husband entered illegally which is why he cannot work. The Ko-fi trip caused that. You helped her to get the paperwork to make it legal.

5. No, the only channel that is a part of Owozu is NoriVT.
6. She indeed did start harassment campaigns on FuelVT. She accused her for being a part of the company (Owozu, Sophie has been trying to make the company look bad by saying how she was “abused”). FuelVT isn’t a part of Owozu. She is only in contact with some of the people from there.
7. Yes, and a lot.

It also has been revealed that Sophie had an obsession with him.

According to Gemini: “Limerence is a psychological state characterized by intense, passionate, and often obsessive romantic feelings for another person, according to Wikipedia. It's similar to being "love-struck" or "falling in love," but it's a more intense and potentially unhealthy infatuation.”

It also has been revealed that her husband is not a programmer and that he started to learn how to code.

I recommend watching this video as it pretty much has the voice call.

With that being said, this is all this document has to offer.
