

Regional Lumber – Superior Choice, Superior Results

No matter whether you're a property developer, construction company owner, or DIY builder, lumber is one of the most important and reliable materials that you're ever going to work with. It's the framework of every building, the floor of every home, and the face of every wall - how much more crucial could it be?

While lumber may be a universally useful material, however, the same is not true for all those who supply it.

Some 'big box' or chain stores source lumber from reputable logging yards, but the majority stock wood of the lowest legally sellable quality, leading to wasted money, time, and effort spent throwing away bad sheets and planks. And those are not all the risks of taking lumber choice lightly. Low quality wood can lead to warping, customer complaints, and sometimes even to entire sections of a build or project needing to be reconstructed.

Done struggling with inferior materials and detached, unhelpful service? Not to worry - a safer, more reliable alternative is just around the corner, and it's in the form of your local lumber supply store.

Read on to discover the ways in which working with regional suppliers can help you and your business, and how you can get in touch with a quality lumber supplier like City Lumber today.

Quality, Quantity, and Affordability

It should come as no surprise that specialized lumber suppliers provide superior material, but the difference between local stores and chains stockers is anything but trivial.

Many people assume that 'big box' stores offer lower prices and larger delivery zones than local lumber supply stores, but this is almost never the case. Lumber Supply Stores like City Lumber work directly with trusted regional suppliers, allowing them to carry superior products greater distances without tacking on middle-man premiums.

Local supply stores also often stock a wider range and amount of specialized products, making it a breeze to tackle even the largest projects without compromising or waiting for special orders or restocking. This can be crucial on larger projects where multiple kinds of wood are required.

Another advantage of working with local lumber supply stores is the way that the lumber itself is stored. Regional sourcing and specialized storage protects the material from exposure to the elements over large periods of travel or time, and this adds just yet another mark to the list of reasons why sourcing locally is the superior option in just about every way.

City Lumber – Oregon's Best of the Best

Established in 1904 and located within easy reach of Portland, Vancouver, and Seattle, City Lumber is Oregon's oldest lumber supply company. We're not all titles and talk, however, and you'll quickly realize just how invested in the lumber trade we are once you start to work with us.

Not only do we have the family-owned touch when it comes to customer service and know-how, but we also have the stock to match. Our range includes Green Douglas Fir dimensional lumber, Clear Fir, Cedar and Oak finish lumber, Timbertech Composite Decking, Pressure Treated lumber, and much, much more.

Need something else? City Lumber has you covered. We have the largest lighting showroom on the Oregon coast, as well as affordable Paint Matching, Propane Exchange, and Pipe Threading services on offer. The best part? It's all provided and curated with the same caring touch that we use when it comes to lumber.

Working with City Lumber should be a no-brainer with all of that on the table, so what are you waiting for? Contact us on [+1 503-325-4511] or visit our website [<https://citylumber.com/>] to make your lumber worries history today.