

February 2022 #HeritageChat

Our Heritage Chat takes place on the third Tuesday of each month at 13.00-14.00 (UK time). The next one will take place on Tuesday 15 February 2022.

The topic of the next Heritage Chat will be 'Storytelling and Heritage'.

We're collecting suggestions for questions to be discussed as part of the chat on this document, please add yours below.

Please phrase your question in around 200 characters - we're collecting ideas until 9 February 2022 at noon and will then publish the list of those that will be used during the #HeritageChat on our dedicated Twitter profile (@HeritageChat).

1. What is the potential of digital storytelling in reaching diverse audiences? Can you provide successful examples?
2. To what extent does community-led heritage storytelling involve heritage sites/orgs relinquishing control ... and why should they take this leap of faith anyway?)Example of community-led heritage storytelling here)
3. What elements do you think make a story really successful?
4. How can we prepare to tell stories about 'dark heritage'? What risks do we have to keep in mind and what can we do to mitigate them?
5. How do you measure the success of your storytelling?
6. Can storytelling be used to track the progress of heritage projects, as a monitoring methodology?
7. How can stories about the past motivate the public to become more engaged with and involved in important issues affecting us now e.g. climate change?
