

Welcome to the Undergraduate Student Forum

NJAHPERD supports the engagement of future professionals. This forum provides a platform for students to share novel ideas, evidence-based best practices, reflective experiences, and research reviews that support the mission of NJAHPERD. Below are three online Undergraduate Student Publication opportunities. ALL young professionals within any health-related field are encouraged to submit content. By fostering collaboration, the aim is to inspire future professionals while celebrating the achievements and contributions of our undergraduate community.

Undergraduate Student Publication Options
Columns	Description	Submission Deadlines	Publication Dates (tentative)
Discovery to Delivery	Brief (300 word maximum) abstract of a peer-reviewed and original data-based research article published within the past year. The article should support NJAHPERD’s mission. Detailed guidelines and submission portal here	October 15 & March 15	December & May
The Tip Jar	Features snippets of trends, best practices, or emerging innovations (maximum 150 words) that provide practical, quick-hitting information for immediate use or application in any of the following health-focused professions: HPE pedagogy, wellness, fitness, training trends, technology, coaching, public health, etc. Detailed guidelines and submission portal here	November 15 & April 15	January & June
Student Impact in Action	A brief (180 word maximum) narration of an undergraduate student’s capstone/senior/or guided project that intended to positively impact the health of students, peers, clients, internship/host agency sites, etc. NOTE: content for this column should NOT be part of a research study where IRB approval was required. Detailed guidelines and submission portal here	December 15 & May 15	February & July