

Hi Linh,

I believe that Outsourcing Angel is not just a virtual assistant outsourcing company, it's a company that is driven by a strong passion for social empowerment and giving back to the community. With your fair and ethical framework, you provide home-based employment opportunities for your VAs, while also investing 10% of your profits into worthy livelihood projects and charity initiatives.

In my search for high-quality assistant recruitment brands, I stumbled across your YouTube channel. I spent some time getting a clear picture of what you do and I think you are doing an amazing job at providing lots of great value for your audience about virtual assistance, social media, and business advice. Especially I liked your video on how to shift physical business to online with virtual assistants.

I was recently admiring your website and couldn't help but be impressed by the quality of your virtual assistant service. While doing so I had a precise look over your sales page and I thought of some ways to improve it by adding a hooking headline and also rewriting the description to refer more to the target market's dream state which will build up more initial trust and momentum towards the sale.

Actually, I have already gathered up and summarized some ideas I had in mind and prepared a little gift for you.

Just send me "interested" and I will send it over!

Kind regards,

Gabriel
