

Hello everyone,

This is a questionnaire for my research project.

Please help me out and answer these questions as truthfully as you can.

I have a very short period of time to do this and couldn't make a Google form so please forgive me.

Stay anonymous: write a letter instead of your whole name and add a number so I can differentiate.

Use a new page for your answers

1. At what age did you start using wattpad?
2. What is the genre you like to read?
3. What do you think about the "good girl and bad boy trope"?
4. Do you think the above mentioned Cliche is toxic, why?
5. Do you think this Cliche trope is excessively used?
6. What are the harmful effects of this trope?
7. What unrealistic standards this trope promotes?
8. How has this trope affected the teenagers?
9. What famous wattpad books have this trope?
10. Which book fails miserably in this trope ?

L98

Answers:

1. 17 years
2. Adult fiction, romance, chicklit, historical fiction, mystery and thriller.
3. Cliché and outdated. Not often appealing to me.
4. Yes, because of the glorification of toxic traits in men to make them seem acceptable, the misimpression that a girl's love can change him for good, and promoting tolerance towards what is bad and rather needs fixing. Also, making the good girl too good and too sweet which in reality might be hard to relate to.
5. Most certainly.
6. Already mentioned in answer 4.
7. The bad boy who turns good only for that one girl. The expectation that maybe she can change him for good. The unrealistic love standards and standards of good traits in the good girl might be difficult to find and relate to.
8. Not being able to find charm out of fiction, and accept flaws in reality when faced with. Unrealistic love standards.
9. Chasing Red.
10. I cannot think of one as it's been a long time since I stopped reading books with the trope. And there are only a few I've ever really enjoyed.