

GREAT MANHATTAN BRIDGE WALK

Manhattan Island - 17 bridges (June 2026)

This walk goes between and across the 17 bridges that connect to Manhattan island. Note that bikes, ebikes, and mopeds use the bridge walkways and bridge intersections can be disordered messes - be careful as you walk.

1. To begin, walk the George Washington Bridge on your own: it's a 2.8-mile round trip if you go all the way to the New Jersey side or just walk as far as the New Jersey sign in the middle of the bridge then turn around which will be around 2 miles, then either go to the bus station and meet the group or wait for the group at the entrance to the North walkway.
2. When we leave the bus station together, we will go right (north) on Fort Washington Avenue, left on 180th Street, right on Cabrini Blvd., left on 181st Street, right to the pedestrian bridge, north on the Hudson River Greenway to Dyckman Street (restrooms) and into Inwood Hill Park. Walk parallel to the train tracks, cross the pedestrian bridge over the train tracks, go right at the second fork and up the hill to the Henry Hudson Bridge.
3. At the end of the walkway go left then make a U-turn on to the left side of Kappock St., go up the staircase, continue around to Netherland Ave., at 227th St. bear right, at W. 230th St., go all the way down the stairs on the right then straight on W. 230th St. across Broadway, then right to 215th St. and left to a break at Target on 215th street (restrooms) then cross the Broadway Bridge on the east walkway.
4. Continue south on Broadway, bear left on 10th Ave., then left on W. 207th St. and cross 207th St. at 9th Avenue and cross the University Heights Bridge on the south side.
