

Art III Painting

The standards for Visual Arts III continue to emphasize the development of critical thinking skills that enable students to organize, investigate, and analyze visual arts content and concepts. Students increasingly focus on historical and cultural studies, critical evaluation, and creative problem solving while the technical focus remains on painting. Study at this level affords students the opportunity to develop personal directions in the production of their works of art through study of color mixing and painting techniques. Students maintain their portfolios and present and exhibit paintings. Students explore applications of fine arts skills for the 21st century workplace, investigate innovations in the arts, and recognize opportunities for a lifelong engagement with visual arts.
