CPSG 100 Science & Global Change First Year Colloquium I
Metro Scavenger Hunt

METRO SCAVENGER HUNT: DETAILS

The way the Scavenger Hunt works is that AS A TEAM you will find examples of various items listed below. There will be some items you need to identify on the outside of museums on the National Mall, and another 10 items you will need to find elsewhere downtown (but which generally can be accomplished within a block or two of the National Mall, so that you don't have to keep on getting on the Metro except to get downtown and back.)

In general, we encourage people to use the Archives/Navy Memorial Station to get to the Mall. It is on both the Green and Yellow Lines, so you don't need to change lines at all from College Park to Archives, and it is only a couple blocks away from the Mall itself. However, feel free to navigate as you wish.

List all your team members who participated in this scavenger hunt:

Risha Manthini

Judith Akondo

Alex Chapin

Bryan Nguyen

PART I: Museums of the National Mall (Photos 1 to 15):

The National Mall is lined by many museums, most (although not all) part of the Smithsonian Institution. Over the next few semesters we will visit several of these for Colloquium field trips. The Smithsonian museums are free (although sometimes there are special exhibits that require an additional fee.)

The way this works is that you will need to find fifteen (15) of the items listed below total in at least three (3) different museums. You might go to more than three museums if you wish, but you aren't required to. In order to verify your discovery, you should photograph all members of the team (except the one taking the picture) in front of the item. For each item, you enter two bits of information: the topic it fulfills, and the photo upload itself.

In no case of the item is there just one single example in the museums. Instead, this is designed so that you are free to be creative in discovering and identifying the example. For example, if the item is “something from Africa” it might be the mounted elephant at the National Museum of Natural History or a piece of artwork at the National Museum of African Art; “something that has been in space” might be a meteorite from Natural History or a space capsule at the National Air & Space Museum; and so on.

You must go to at least three different museums, but can use more if you wish:

National Museum of African Art	National Museum of American Art
National Museum of American History	National Museum of the American Indian
National Museum of Natural History	Hirshhorn Museum & Sculpture Garden
National Portrait Gallery	National Air & Space Museum (currently requires free timed-entry passes)
National Gallery of Art (including its Sculpture Garden)
Freer Gallery of Art and Arthur M. Sackler Gallery (Asian art)

Here is the list. Choose fifteen (15) different topic items from this list:

Cat	Dog	Horse	Bird	Fish	Snake	Insect or Arachnid	An Extinct Animal
Man in a robe		Woman in a dress		A child or children
A doctor/nurse		A soldier/warrior		A priest/religious authority
Someone on horseback		Someone riding a vehicle		Someone/thing swimming
Something from Africa		Something from Asia		Something from South America
Something from Europe		Something from North America		Something from Australasia
Something that has actually been in outer space (beyond Earth’s atmosphere)
Something that has been underground				Something that has been underwater
Something with a sail		Something with wings		Something with a jet
Something intended to put on the head				Something intended to be put on the feet
Something intended to be held with the hands				Something intended to be worn around the neck
Something intended to be used to kill				Something intended to be used to heal
Something used to calculate				Something used to communicate

You must have fifteen separate topic items: no double-, triple-, or other multiple-dipping (like using a picture of Australian male doctor in a robe on a horse to fulfill four topic items.) Indicate in your uploads what topic the item is fulfilling.
