

Passing a layover at an unknown airport can truly draw all the fun out of travel. Fortunately is a layover at Phoenix Airport uses a lot of methods to avoid monotony. Here are ideas for 9 things to do on a stopover at Phoenix Airport--who knows, you might even enjoy yourself! You can solve these appliance repair service near me problems about 90 percent of the time without calling for a dishwasher repair technician.

Enjoy a bite to eat

Airport DiningYou will not be starved for dining options here. Lots of restaurants are offered, ranging from quick to-go kiosks to casual spots and more leisurely sit-down dining establishments. Attempt Mexican food at Blanco Tacos and Tequila, Los Taquitos, and Barrio Coffee shop. For something fancier, head to Cheuvront Restaurant Red Wine Bar. You'll also find plenty of fast options, like Smashburger, Starbucks, Wildflower Bread Company, and other delis and cafes. A couple eateries remain open 24-hours, both prior to and inside the protected locations.

Relax in a lounge

Airport LoungesNeed to catch up on work? Want to hang out in a quieter spot? An airport lounge may be exactly what you require. The Club at PHX offers access to any visitor, regardless of your airline or flight class. That implies even if you're flying Economy, you can delight in the endless food and beverage, strong WiFi, TELEVISION and news, and comfortable setting that the entry fee will get you. Just pre-book online or utilize your lounge subscription program. A few more lounges cater to tourists flying American or United. See our Phoenix Airport Guide for details.

Go shopping

ShoppingWhether you're a huge spender or simply a window buyer, you have a lot of options here. Shops both pre- and post-Security dish out the usual selection of convenience, travel products, keepsakes, and books. Roosevelt Row in Terminal 2 is a great area to pick up locally-made items, and Cactus Candy provides ready-to-go packages of prickly-pear cactus candy, an Arizona favorite.

Get pampered

See one of 2 XpresSpa places for some peaceful me-time, where manicures, pedicures, chair massages, and more are readily available.

Walk the fitness trail

Look at the positive side: a long stopover indicates you have lots of time to get in your everyday actions. An easy method to do it is following the FitPHX walkway, which connects Gates A30 and D80.

Visit the museums

The Phoenix Airport Museum has established a number of exhibits throughout the airport, highlighting location culture and history. Terminal 2's exhibitions is concentrated on Grand Canyon photography, while Terminal 3 and Terminal 4 feature paintings, materials, storytelling, sculptures, and more from regional artists.

Sightseeing

Stopover Sightseeing Tired of passing the time in the airport? Head out and explore the dynamic metropolis of Phoenix. Sky Harbor Airport is located in the middle of all of it, simply minutes from downtown Phoenix, Scottsdale, and Tempe, home to Arizona State University. Due to take a trip times to and from the airport, we just advise this choice if you have at least 6 hours before your next flight.

For quick service, get on the PHX Sky Train and change to the Valley Metro Rail to reach downtown Phoenix, where you can visit top museums like the Heard, the Phoenix Art Museum, and the Musical Instrument Museum. Taxi cabs and airport shuttles are offered to get to other close-by destinations. Old Town Scottsdale is best for strolling, shopping, and getting a bite to eat. The Desert Arboretum, in Tempe, is a best location to connect with nature without going too far. Longing for some adrenaline? Hike Camelback Mountain or hit the Echo Canyon Path.

Nevertheless your spend your stopover, be sure to leave lots of time to get back to the airport and capture your next flight.

WiFi

Capture up on work or your social networks thanks to unlimited and totally free WiFi.

Sleep

Airport Sleeper Sleeping isn't much of a problem here, offered you can find an area to relaxing into. Benches and seats abound, however the majority of are fitted with armrests. For a complete stretch-out, the floor is most likely your best bet. If you're for the night, do anticipate a lot of sound, specifically frequent fire drills roaring between 1AM-- 4AM. If this sleeping style isn't your thing, select a hotel. Numerous lie within a few minutes' drive of the airport, and many use totally free shuttle service. Details and areas are noted in our Phoenix Airport Guide.