

Dear Devin,

I hope this message finds you well. As I was scrolling on Instagram, your photo caught my attention and I was like “damn this guy is massive”. Upon exploring your Linktree, it directed me to your website, where I had the chance to see what your product and services offer. While your website is already engaging, I believe there are opportunities to make it even more compelling and attract a larger audience of subscribers and customers.

While exploring your platform, I've identified 2 key areas for improvement on your website. However, as if I dig a little bit further, about the website I could possibly uncover additional improvements that can boost sales for your programs and attract more clients. Before diving into those details, allow me to provide you with a comprehensive overview.

As a copywriter, I have a keen eye for optimizing online platforms to maximize their potential. By making strategic improvements to your website, we can possibly increase its visibility, draw more attention, and make it easier to navigate. But let's not stop there. I believe I can also help you to plan and analyze your comment section, such as TikTok, Instagram and Youtube to connect more for your followers and subscribers.

I would be delighted to discuss these improvement opportunities in more detail and share specific recommendations tailored to your unique goals and audience. Please let me know if you are interested in setting a convenient time for a call or meeting, and if our schedule fits then we can discuss for more further details.

Thank you for your time, and I look forward to the possibility of working together to take your online presence to new heights.

Best regards,

Paul
