

THE PILGRAMAGE OF UNYIELDING ASPIRATIONS -

RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATION in TERRESOL. At the seat of RIKOLTO in AKNO. Ruled by VISIONARY DEMETRI TROIARUS. Sworn to TINY VIK.

In the province of Akno you will find no temples for the Wisdoms, no statues of the Southern Pantheon, no sermons about the will of the gods; instead you will find the Pilgrimage. For a number of years the common folk have been told stories of a new god who goes by Tiny Vik, his visionaries emerged from the Regit Swampland in a wave, adorned with golden masks and purple robes, with gifts and stories for anyone who would listen. They spoke of eliminating the Bloodcaste, of blurring the lines between the classes, a world where anything was achievable through their own means. Little girls who dreamt of being a princess, fathers and mothers who grew tired of strenuous taxes, even those who had too much and wished for a simple life, this could be a new start, and the only price was patience. Now the city of Rikolto has been taken, the followers even calling it "Vikolto," for the new lord, a follower of the Pilgrimage sits on the seat of power, the guard is filled with Visionaries, and the time has come for the Religion to come into light.

- Jarah Vikchild - Visionary of Investigation. With every religion, there are sinners, and then there are those who find them. The Visionaries of Investigation are the Inquisition of the Pilgrimage. Their first act was the public execution of the noble house's Wisdom after he made the mistake of telling the new Lady she "Had," to attend her lessons for the day. If the Visionaries of Relation were the voice of Tiny Vik, and the Visionaries of Finance his brains, then the Visionaries of Investigation would not only be his eyes, but also his hands. They are the cold will and drive that embodies their god of desires, and Jarah is the best. Jarah is the most loyal of the Visionaries, even dwarfing the head of the church, Demetri. They are so steadfast in their belief that many have assumed they are simply another thrall being puppeted by the strange deity, but this is debunked the moment they speak. Jarah is the androgynous force, a physical representation of the fear sinners should feel. They are the only Visionary who wears black robes instead of purple, and their mask is a scowling, disappointed face cast in iron. They make the other council members uncomfortable, except for the Visionary of Security, who views their methods as extremist, but they get the job done.

Please DM Hobbit_Viking77#9978 for more information!