

The days of the week always have a certain feeling, each day is something new. Each day is so distinct and special in its own way. I dread some days and I anticipate others.

If each day on the calendar was represented by a person then they would all be completely different and unique.

Everyone knows that the first day of the week is Sunday. Sunday would be an extremely peaceful person who is always thrown into chaos. Every time they have everything under control then something comes and ruins their entire day. Even though they try to control everything they are exceedingly forgetful. They often find themselves procrastinating without them even noticing. I can see Sunday as a person that cares a lot about her self care routine more than her English essay. Even though they leave everything for the last minute they somehow get everything done and have good grades. Sunday is always calm before the storm.

A storm is what I refer to as Monday. Monday has a really messed up sleep schedule and has no friends. Every time it rains she's inside watching Netflix. Even though she is always at home she makes everyone else's life worse. She tires everyone out all the time and feels no remorse for it. Nobody likes Monday but she can't seem to get a clue.

Tuesday is bland, nothing ever happens on Tuesdays. I imagine Tuesday as a plain Jane. They are a person that you don't even notice is there. They're invisible, always overlooked and disregarded. Deep down Tuesday is planning world domination. Tuesday keeps everything inside waiting for the right moment. Unfortunately for now Tuesday is staying in the shadows as awkward as ever.

Wednesday is always in the middle. They're the third wheel while everyone around them is in a relationship. When two people are in an argument Wednesday is in the middle of it all. For Wednesday there is no middle for their emotions, either they're super happy or they are about to punch a hole in the wall just to blow off some steam. Some days they're unstoppable others they are impossible to be around unless you want to get yelled at. Everyone refers to them as "wacky Wednesday".

Thursday is always anticipating something. They are daydreaming for that perfect moment. The type of moment when the world stops and everything is in slow motion as you realize how beautiful life really is. Thursday is a hopeless romantic waiting for someone to sweep them off their feet. Thursday always gets all their work done early so they can watch High School Musical: The Musical: The Series.

Friday is the person that everyone loves and adores. They are super joyful and always positive. Friday is the type of person that impresses you on the date. Conversations flow well with Friday's. Friday's are filled with passion and excitement. When you make plans with them it's always something to look forward to.

Saturday's are adventurous. They are a major party animal and time flies by when you're having fun around them.