You know what people hate to read?

Anything that's boooooorrrinngg.

When was the last time you read something boring and enjoyed it?

You probably said never. That is because it doesn't exist.

Most people write in a super boring way, and it's demolishing their sales.

Let's take a look at some examples:

"I make software robotics while I also do engineering. I like this job a lot and I think maybe I could help you with your software."

Or this one:

"I wanted to reach out because I've been in the process of making a website that will change the way you view websites"

Or this one:

"Sorry to bother you, could I get 30 seconds of your time?"

The second people get bored, they will instantly leave and never read your stuff.

- Here are some examples, and how to fix them
- "You need to cut through the clutter. Straight to the point"
- People don't like their time to be wasted
- Write aggressively
