

Nezaket Özgirin did her MA-TEFL and RSA/DOTE at Bilkent University, and has been teaching at Sabancı University (SU-SL) since 2003. She worked as a self-access teacher and teacher trainer at Bilkent University, set up a self-access center at Işık University, and organized teacher training seminars for ELT teachers for the Ministry of Education, Turkey. Currently, she is co-moderating an online course through Electronic Village Online (EVO) with Sibel Şimşek Taşkın. Her current interest areas are developing knowledge and skills through online courses and exploiting ways that can facilitate learning and digital literacies.

Sharon Çeltek is currently teaching at Sabancı University where she is involved in the School of Languages developmental observation program and the Teacher Education Program (SLTEP). Previously, she was responsible for developing in-service training programmes, CELTA and short courses at both International House and the British Council. She is currently a Distance DELTA tutor with International House London. She is interested in the application of mindfulness in teaching and learning.

Pinar Gunduz is an English instructor at Sabancı University since 2006. She is also the Curriculum and Assessment Coordinator of Sabancı University School of Languages. She is interested in learner autonomy, teaching vocabulary, extensive reading, using technology in ELT, and the backwash effect of exams on teaching and learning.

Jacqueline Einer has been working as an instructor at Sabancı University, School of Languages since 2000 and is currently the Director. She is interested in exploring students' learning in EAP contexts both inside and outside the classroom using both traditional and online tools.

SL-TeDOL: Vocabulary Teaching and Learning is supervised by Deniz Kurtoğlu Eken, Projects, Development and Research Coordinator at the School of Languages. Here's her website for more information.