

Howdy, I'm Truffle the chocolate otter. I've been a furry for over 20 years, originally from Virginia I'm now a proud Coloradan. Demi-gay and looking for a new life partner.

I love baking, especially bread, though I'm not much of a decorator. It never stops my enjoyment of the hobby. I love taking cooking classes so I can expand my skillset as it's an area I struggle with but want to get better at.

As a lover of genuine retro and vintage I love 70s/80s decor, technology. It's an era of time that I frequently enjoy visiting in my creative writing. As well as gives me a love for 35mm photography with vintage cameras.

Taking my limited camera selection with me every time I go off-roading in my Bronco, I am a huge fan of long mountain trails, camping, and trips to Moab. As well as roadtrips in general, I just love taking the slow path, the backroads, seeing the majesty not only of nature but the pockets of life hidden away in long stretches of nothingness. This is something I'd really love to share with friends, especially a mate.

Whether long trips, or short weekend excursions for camping, let's see the beauty of the country together.

I dream of visiting every National Park in America, and would like to travel internationally some day. Part of my desire to go on journeys include attending smaller furcons, which I'd like to do with a little more frequency.

When it comes to my creative writing, I am the creator of Northern Lights VN, and have been writing almost as long as I've been a furry. I love long-form RPs, and would like to try TTRPGs but those are newer and scary to me.

My main fursona is Truffle, a chocolate otter (literally is chocolate), and he's entirely a SFW creature. While Mojave is my cryptid coyote, he is the character I live my NSFW through.

I might be a little socially awkward at first when hanging out, but I'm quick to open up, have fun, and laugh.
