Medical history

No documented medical history before joining the Foundation.

15/06/█████ - Surgery to replace key Organs

On the date of 15/06/█████ Charles "Ze" Whitmee suffered multiple heart attacks despite no existing medical conditions and being in perfect health per his last Physical evaluation. For the next few hours Charles was pursued by an Entity referred to as "Death's messenger" in which the supposed date of his death was revealed to him. Fearing this date and clenching his chest from earlier Charles fled to Medical.

Dpt. Director of Medical "Prophet" presented him with some options, 2 of which involved replacing his heart. A waiver was signed.

Option chosen: Core

>Heart and lungs are removed and replaced by an anomalous core. Purely internal upgrade. No chance of heart attacks possible.

Procedure was a success with Charles making a full recovery.

Psych eval pending.

Prior events

Prior to the foundation:

Charles was born in London, his mother a convicted criminal, who put the poor child up for adoption as she was the only relative little Charles had.

For the next few years Charles would end up bouncing around multiple orphanages and adoption agencies in London, never managing to settle down nor get adopted. And with every move the bullying only got worse, tormented by those older than him Charles spent a large amount of his youth fighting the bullies. As he got older himself he kept the bullies at bay, and thanks to his experience as a kid he would try and protect those younger than him, ingraining in him a sense of justice and purpose. To protect others.

Soon enough Charles became 18, and with the recommendation of a recruiter he joined the Metropolitan Police Service, in which he underwent training and became an officer of the law. However as much as he enjoyed his position, delighted by the fact he could now protect the people he cared for in the city, he could not ignore the ever-growing number of cases that would go unsolved, as no detective would take them. So he set this as his goal, to become a detective!

It took Charles a few years of dutiful work and diligence but he earned his promotion finally able to ensure that everyone got a fair chance at getting justice, no matter how long it may take.

The Church

After a while of solving cases Charles would begin to notice certain details in cases from one area. In [REDACTED] there were reports of a "machine cult" as one whistle blower called it, with this information he was able to link a series of unsolved crimes to it., ranging from theft to kidnapping. However his superiors refused to take this "cult" seriously, writing it off as a series of unfortunate events and the ravings of a drunkard. But Charles was not satisfied.

So one night Charles went to investigate himself, bringing with him a pistol, finding the Chapel that he was informed about through his work. Upon approaching the building he could hear screams from within. So Charles being Charles, protector of the people, charged into the building, pistol drawn. He spotted a tied up girl being mutilated in the centre of the Chapel, surrounded by men that looked half machine. Recalling the reports and knowing full well what the cultists do he open fired upon them, managing to kill 2 of the 3. Then a loud shot rang out as the third cultist fell to the floor. Standing behind Charles was the MTF Pi-1.

Recruitment and foundation life

Following his capture by MTF Pi-1 his case files were seized and classified by the foundation. As it would turn out the foundation was following Charles' work to locate this sect of "The Church of the Broken God", however Charles had beaten them to the punch by eliminating them. This caused some debate within the Foundation staff, Charles could become a useful staff member with the skills he demonstrated... With much debate between branches at the SCP foundation they offered Charles a position in the foundation. Charles accepted this position, knowing there were groups at large like the Church, he saw the foundation as a way to fight against them, and protect even more people.

Charles was transferred to Site-65 shortly after joining, however why or who authorised this is unknown. However Charles was obligated to follow orders. Upon arrival he noted a sense of lawlessness in certain areas of the site, which drew his attention to IA. A police force within the foundation, he knew this is where he belonged.

Life in Internal Affairs

Since joining Internal Affairs and being promoted to Ambassador Charles took great pleasure in ensuring law and order was brought to the site, working with his fellow staff to make arrests and advise staff on the legality of their actions. He certainly enjoyed training new agents, new hands of the law even, however as time went on he started to find some of the current procedures and training inadequate, staff wouldn't always trust agents. Charles took it upon himself to look into this matter, going across site observing Agent behaviours and interactions.

What were his findings? While he did find some exceptional Agents, he also watched some rather poor agents. These agents didn't seem to know the policies or procedures, making site staff untrusting of IA as a whole.. Even in his current position there was only so much could do to change this state of affairs, however when a director seat opened up Charles saw this as his chance to affect IA as a whole, and remedy these agents.

Internal Affairs and beyond

And so he was chosen, Charles had become the brand new Director of Internal Affairs where he would serve for many years, dealing with many incidents on site.

The OV investigation...The Void and Many meddling factions

These events would attract the attention of the Ethics Committee, who kept a watchful eye on Charles, taking a “guiding” hand at times.
