

FORUM ON ADULT CONTINUING EDUCATION

November 19, 9:00-10:30,
Moscow

*National Research University Higher School of Economics
Pokrovsky Boulevard, 11, F201*

ASEAN Summit on Adult Learning and Education.

Key objectives:

The emerging economies of ASEAN countries are creating a demand for highly skilled workforce whose knowledge, skills, and abilities are updated for a new technologies and innovation-driven industry. The adult lifelong learning systems are also rapidly changed and adapted to business objectives and individual needs. The 1st ASEAN Adult Learning and Education Summit aims to identify the needs of international enterprises for competencies in this region and to analyze the concepts of educational centers that can provide effective support to businesses with highly qualified workforce in a multipolar economic world. The discussion will also focus on modern global universities, which are aligning their lifelong learning institutions to address these challenges.

The following topics will be discussed:

- Current trends in lifelong learning policy;
- The most effective national instruments of state support for adult learning and education (ALE) in countries with growing economies;
- Features for universities in lifelong learning;
- Research in the field of ALE that contributes to increasing employment, performance, and human enhancement, also in the context of AI.
- Methods for assessing the effectiveness of skills development;
- Instructional design of educational products;
- etc.

A desirable outcome of the Forum will be creation of an International Lifelong Life Observatory – an international expert and research platform dedicated to advancing the global visibility and impact of lifelong learning in emerging economies.

Audience:

- International businesses operating in ASEAN countries
- Leaders of continuing education systems in countries and universities

Language:

English; simultaneous translation into Russian will be provided.
