Hello! Since you have received this file, I trust you will make the most out of it! Some of the texts written below is coded, for example, the text after a comma may indicate that it is related to the previous text (before the comma) but I didn't really phrase it in a way to make it sound complete. The grammatical errors aren't fixed because I was being lazy.

The word "share" means that I intended to share the text/knowledge on social media to spread awareness. I don't know how long will it take me to finalize this draft and no one knows the time of death. Therefore, I'm sharing this with you so that you may finish the work that I started. Please read the texts below and share it with as many people as you can (if you find it is worth sharing, of course) so that they benefit from it.

Convincing men to unfriend women and how women are different from men:

- Just because a woman is pretty that does not mean she is compatible for marriage. Everything that shines isn't gold (Har chamakti hui cheez sona nahi hoti magar aankhon ko achi lagti hai.)
- Bulati hai magar jaanay ka nahi (poetry by Rahat Indori)
- Reasons for befriending women:
 - o They are very indecisive
 - o They bring their personal problems into an argument/discussion and make excuses
 - o They gossip a lot and they can ruin friendships between men, like what happened between my elder brother and his friends in Monash. Woh larkon k dimaagh mein baat daal daiti hain. They have good intention but it often takes turn for the worst.
 - o Some of them develop feelings and ruin the whole friends' group, Disadvantage of having female friend, throw_way:

Friend is kinda a vague term. Having female friends in your circle is great. Having very close female friends rarely ends well. I've had a close female friend who was in a relationship try to seduce me and it fucked up the whole friend group.

My close friend at work a few years back who was engaged developed into something more and I'm ashamed to say we actually did hook up. I had to change jobs over it.

If only those women were capable of seeing me as more than a sex object or maybe it's just more complicated than that.

- Another setback of having female friends is that girls who you don't like, start liking you. They will try to be close to you and you will resist or try to ignore them because your attention is on a different girl. I learned this through my experience with a female friend (Adi) in Monash.

They could, but it just doesn't work that way, and it's not the most attractive to them either. It would be a male fantasy to hear a woman say "I want sex right now. I want you to (insert lewd details here) me."

Likewise, it would be a female fantasy to hear/see a man say/do everything she wants him to say/do without her telling him (i.e., mind-reading powers). Just like a romance novel.

The way men look at women is very different to how women look at men. Women are made to appear beautiful in men's eyes by Allah, and we find women 'cute' in the sense we have a desire to protect. Not 'cute' as in baby cute, but cute as in "My partner is adorable in whatever she does"., brain, men, women

- 16. Islamic Psychology:
 - a. Women are not allowed to travel because they will get accustomed to those places and that hospitality. The surprise factor is gone. Once, they get married, their husband won't be able to surprise them with new places or something because most of the times even the new places has the same kind of atmosphere. Women will not be impressed.
 - b. Masculine roles are not recommended to women but women say that they can take those roles, they can raise children as a single parent but when they reach in mid 30s, they get exhausted trying to maintain the work life balance and they feel lonely. It is also not recommended to stay unmarried because the children wouldn't be able to learn what couples do from their parents. There will be no example for children to apply when THEY get married. Furthermore, there wouldn't be any male figure in the house. Example of that swimming video I watched.

- c. Islam says that you should eat together because when you are in a gathering, you talk and share stories. Everyone learns important lessons from these stories whether good or bad. Eating together also makes you generous and share food. It also builds trust
 - d. Islam recommends to wake early for success because some countries have time zones different from you and you are basically waking up early than other countries to prepare for meetings/negotiations. I learned this from one of the podcasts
 - e. Islam recommends to pray namaaz with jama'at because when you go outside you look around and inspect to see the current situation. This way you learn about latest news in your neighbourhood. When you are home all day, you don't get to learn stuff. Also, praying with jama'at builds brotherhood and promotes daily interactions.
 - f. People think that following half of Islam will grant them full benefit.
17. Allah fulfilled His promise that he made to Hazrat Musa's mother even though it didn't seem like it. Hazrat Musa ended up in Firon's palace from where she (mother) was saving him from. And we should take this as a lesson that Allah always fulfills His promise no matter how impossible the situation might seem. Hazrat Ibrahim (pbuh) wasn't burnt in fire. Hazrat Yunus (pbuh) wasn't eaten by the whale
18. Everyone needs to be reminded periodically about Jahannam, namaaz, zina etc so that they feel motivated.

20. My preference in women changed and I can relate to the comment here:
- a. How Can I Approach Someone for Marriage? || AMAU Q&A, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5c56E9Qi5s0>

What's so beautiful about niqabis is how, in most cases, righteous men would ever dare approach one out of interest. This phenomena is literally the manifestation of the aya in the Quran: "...Women of purity are for men of purity, and men of purity are for women of purity..." (24:26). Allahu Akbar!

I can testify to this as well. Back when I wasn't really practicing, niqabis were completely out of the picture for me, but after Allah guided me (and I pray he keeps me steadfast), I've slowly been experiencing this paradigm shift in the way I started to see things in life. For instance, when I see a niqabi I can't help but be fascinated and imagine them miles above me in the sight of Allah. As a result, my iman starts to increase. May Allah guide us bless us with spouses the coolness of our eyes., share

22. Be grateful that you are born average-looking. This quality saves you from Zina because generally people are not attracted. It's a blessing in disguise.
23. Islam recommends men to grow beard and cut mustache. Here's why I think that is:
- a. With a mustache a person looks intimidating, arrogant and egoistic
 - b. Without a mustache a person looks approachable, gentle and humble
24. Do not idealize celebrities, actors and even scholars because you might feel betrayed the moment they mess up. Here are some examples:
- a. Tariq Jameel's son suicide controversy

- b. Danish Taimoor 4 weddings statement controversy during 2025 Ramadan transmission. I think it was on 18th March or before

 34. Hassassin30, CMV: Islam is fundamentally more dangerous than any other Abrahamic religion because it is the only one to codify laws and systems of governance.,
<https://www.reddit.com/r/changemyview/comments/p7ttgc/comment/h9mb29p/>

You have a series of misconceptions about Islam, and I'd like to suggest your view might change if you understand Islam a bit better.

Firstly, the major Islamic sources of doctrine (The Qu'ran and Hadith) don't include a lot of legal prescriptions. Sure, there are a few injunctions, and a lot about inheritance law. But there's also a lot about not being prescriptive about things. Muhammad (and early Muslims scholars) would notably use their judgement to forgive or wave away someone's infringement, rather than jumping to punishing them.

Secondly, there's not just one source of Islamic Law. People disagree about what Islamic law is, and there are diverse scholarly arguments. Uniquely amongst Abrahamic religions, the earliest Muslim legal scholars realised that it would be impossible to impose one interpretation of law. They responded by institutionalising disagreement, which led to the creation of the 4 legal schools of thought. This means that there is ongoing debate about what laws mean in the modern context. Muslims are dangerous when they ignore this fact about their religion, not when they follow it.

Thirdly, you're generalising about all Muslims. Actually, prominent Muslim scholars are actively discouraging overly legalistic interpretations of the religion, saying that it is completely against the core values of Islam to simply follow rules, without understanding the inward dimensions of the religion that are about improving one's character, restraining one's impulses, and trying to be a better human being.

All this makes me conclude that dangerous Muslims are a product of cultural and political forces creating a demand for a simplistic world view. They are not, and cannot be seen as a legitimate interpretation of classical Islamic legal tradition.

How to know if the family is a good Muslim and suitable for marriage

Preface

While reviewing various spouse selection checklists on Reddit, I noticed that many included criteria that seemed unsuitable for evaluating a potential spouse and their family. Moreover, these checklists often do not account for the possibility of dishonesty—an individual may provide misleading answers simply to gain approval for a proposal. Relying solely on verbal responses is insufficient for assessing someone's true character.

Therefore, I decided to make my own list based on my personal observations and help from online sources. In my view, Akhlaaq (moral character and etiquette) should be a primary consideration when evaluating someone's personality. I have consistently observed that individuals lacking in basic manners often exhibit problematic behavior, regardless of the nature of the relationship—whether as a spouse, friend, colleague, or even a family member.

Akhlaaq reflects a person's emotional intelligence, empathy, and sincerity in adhering to ethical and religious principles. It is not an isolated trait; rather, it permeates every aspect of an individual's character and often serves as a more reliable indicator of their true nature. In contrast, religiosity without Akhlaaq may not lead to meaningful personal growth. A kind and respectful person is more likely to embrace religious values over time than someone who appears outwardly religious but lacks basic etiquettes.

The cool thing about the following list (for the most part) is that it only requires you to observe the potential spouse, you don't even have to say anything.

1. Are they punctual? Do they inform ahead of time when they are getting late? Do they apologize if they happen to arrive late?
2. Do they offer help during get-togethers, for example, serving food, cleaning dishes, etc?
3. Do they reply to your text messages? If they are not replying to your messages, is it because they do not prefer texting? If they do not like texting, have they made it clear to you that they do not prefer texting?
4. How do they decline an offer? Do they make an excuse or are they honest about it?
5. Are they overcompensating during lunch/dinner? For example, you requested water but they served you a beverage. Or you asked for a glass of warm water but they served you cold water. Do they apologize if they were unable to fulfill your request?
6. Do they make sure to finish food that was on their plate?
7. Do they spill food when eating? Do they bother picking up food if they accidentally spilled?
8. Is the MIL too friendly or too touchy? Are the in-laws displaying exaggerated flattery or affection?
9. Are they listening to you in a relaxed manner or are they attentive? Do they show interest?
10. If someone is interrupted during a group conversation, will they go back and say "what were you about to say?" to the one who was interrupted?
11. If a waiter makes a small mistake, how do they react? Do they make a scene or laugh it off? Are they respectful towards the waiter or do they treat them as inferior? (Reminds me of the scene from Lage Raho Munna Bhai where a girl was supposed to meet a guy that his father selected from the matrimonial section in a newspaper)
12. Do they gossip about their relatives or friends behind their back or do they speak about them as if they were there?
13. Are they habitual of uttering words such as toxic, manipulative, gaslighting, narcissist, etc, without giving proper explanation? Are they always the victim in their stories?
14. How do they conduct arguments or take criticism? People often get offended when you criticize their ideals or when you have a difference in opinion. (Like how people get offended when you present opposing views about a particular Muslim scholar they follow)
15. How do they apologize? Do they get defensive and double down or do they acknowledge another person's perspective? Here is an example:
<https://www.reddit.com/r/copywriting/comments/7vxqal/comment/dtw25fs/>
16. Are they unkind to animals?
17. Are they a people pleaser or do they have boundaries?
18. Are they enablers or helpers for the societal problems? Example of Saul's brother medical condition in Better Call Saul series.

19. Are the jokes that they find funny, distasteful? (violent, toxic, etc.)

Marriage advice for men:

1. I commented here, Smart-Show-4479 How to be a good husband?,
https://www.reddit.com/r/pakistan/comments/1j89pmq/how_to_be_a_good_husband/
2. Sometimes when she wants to talk to you about something that's bugging her, she just wants you to listen and sympathize. Men are fixers; we hear about a problem, our first instinct is to solve it. Women usually need to work through their feelings first. Don't suggest solutions unless she explicitly asks for them.
3. When you argue--and you will--ask yourself what's more important: being right, or being in the relationship? The day the answer is "being right" is the day you know something's seriously wrong with the relationship.
4. Along those lines, if she asks you to do something reasonable (e.g. "Could you take the garbage out?", etc.), and you're not in the middle of something incredibly delicate and vital (e.g. brain surgery), put the game controller down and do what she asked. No argument, no rolling your eyes, no heavy sighing. You'll be amazed how much peace can be maintained in the relationship by following this simple rule.

5. Compliment more towards her character and less on her looks. According to some videos and posts, women think it's shallow for a person to compliment on their physical appearance. Add more words to your vocabulary or memorize some lines of poetry.
6. Some more compliment:
7. Be-qraar karke humein yun na jaye
Aapko hamari qasm lout aaye
8. If she ever gets mad at you for no reason, remember that sometimes it's not her, it's her hormones talking, so be patient with her.
9. Clean up after yourself, like after shaving or trimming, clean the basin and toilet. Women are generally more sensitive towards cleanliness so you might have to learn some deep cleaning stuff on the internet.
10. Don't entertain a scarcity mindset. Appreciate the good, ignore the bad.
11. Take extra care of your hygiene
12. Watch this clip from the movie The Break-Up. A lot of men don't understand the scenarios where a wife is doing all the work without being asked. So it's recommended that husbands should do the work without being asked as well. However, if you are being asked to do something, you know what to do (refer to point no. 3).
13. Display romantic gestures like spending time with your wife and doing things that your wife likes but also keep your boundaries. If there is something you are not comfortable with then let her know
14. Finally, don't neglect yourself, your interests, your friends, and so on. She's with you because you're an interesting person. If your life becomes all about her, she's going to find you boring.
15. Leave love notes for your partner. You can add surprises too.
16. Hire a maid if you can or help her with house chores.

Life changes. Circumstances change. Feelings change. Situations you could have never anticipated can come up. Always look for someone who is open-minded, understanding, flexible and caring, within the bounds of Islam.

Examples of agreements not to make: Anything that asks you to forfeit your Islamic rights or your rights as a human being, living permanently in a certain place or extended family situation, agreeing to dress in a very specific way that isn't in your cultural norms or what you're used to (except that which is explicitly fard - and make sure you both actually know what is actually fard), agreeing to always stay in shape (though we should always try, sometimes we don't have full control over it - look for someone who is understanding; there are posts here where the guy has asked the girl to agree to stay in shape right after pregnancy too, before anything has even happened).

Some of these things might be necessary or agreeable for the short-term or at certain times, or they might be something you can work towards at your own pace, or they might be something someone desires in a spouse and wishes to express - that's fine. It could also be fine to end up doing any of the above too, out of your own choice. But it's important that potentials are not pushing you to permanently accept something that has a chance of not being sustainable in the future.

Note: Obviously I'm not talking about major things like infidelity or a lack of religious practice., , -

Marriage advice for women

1. Be indirect with your husband. Don't make "demands". For example, "I like when the house is warm, I feel so comfortable" rather than "Go change the thermostat, I'm cold" I'll just say how happy it makes me when he does things and how it makes my life so much better, and he'll just keep doing them, How To Train Your Husband!, II STEVE HARVEY,

2. Men prefer solving problems themselves like how Prophet pbuh used to meditate in cave Hira. Women are supposed to be patient during that time and not nag or pry., men, women
3. Stop reading romantic novels. That male character is not REAL! Stop fantasizing about him.
4. Stop fantasizing about your wedding day as the "big day", the actual part starts after the wedding. Prepare for the marriage more than the wedding.

7. When at the age of 102, my granny told me, women test men's anger, as a survival instinct. If he can hold his temper, and not knock you out, then he was a keeper. She advised, that it should only be once, or twice, so as not to lose a good one. She was wise, for only a 3rd grade education. RIP Gran., <https://www.youtube.com/shorts/aAhTBiUJibA>
8. Read the book called "Trust no Aunty" especially if you are desi
9. Do not reject shy guys, they are usually the ones that do not have a promiscuous past. Due to their shyness they weren't able to talk to girls.
