Anyone can pick up a brush and paint a wall right? ON maybe but that does not mean that you can get the professional finish a good painter and decorator can. There are lots of reasons why you need the services of a good painter and decorator and here are just a few of the reasons why.

Believe it or not hiring a professional painter and decorator may well save you some time. Lots of people think that it's just a case of slapping some paint on the wall but even that can be time consuming and sometimes can take you hours or even days to get the job finished. You may be better off letting a professional do the job which will not only save you time but also get a much better finish. A good painter and decorator will be able to finish the job in half the time it would take you, after all they do it every day so are used to this type of work.

If you have never decorated a room before it may surprise you that it's not just a case of hanging some wallpaper, there is much more to it than that as some walls need preparation before you can even start to think to hang the wallpaper. Walls in older houses may not be that even and they are not always the same height. Preparation may just be a simple sand down of the wall to remove any old wallpaper that has been stripped off to maybe filling in some holes. On really uneven walls you might be advised to hang some lining paper first to get your final wallpaper as smooth as possible.

A professional painter and decorator will have all the tools of the trade which they will have built up through the years which means they will be able to paint or paper with a much better finish. The second tool a decorator will have is knowledge or what we call the tricks of the trade. Have you ever tried to paper around a corner and just couldn't get the paper on both sides of the corner to align correctly?

Purchasing the tools you would need to get the finish you like can be quite expensive so sometimes just hiring a decorator can turn out cheaper in the long run. And finally an experienced decorator will have the contacts to purchase paint and wallpaper at a cheaper rate that you could purchase even from the large DIY outlets, some of these paints that are available are better quality that you could buy from a DIY store and with better quality so take advantage of this knowledge to get your decorating done quicker and cheaper.
