

This has been the 10th account to get locked by Twitter. Your policy and detection thing is broken because I've literally done nothing wrong here. All I wanted to do was follow people and you threw a fit about it.

As a result, I am going to rant to EVERYONE about it. All of my accounts have been locked by phone number verification, but I don't own a phone. So please kindly stop asking for something I don't have. Nobody likes when you do that.

If I CLEARLY don't have what you're looking for, you should stop asking for it after like the 3rd account gets locked. But no, you have to do it the hard way by asking me for something I don't even have.

And don't even start with your pitiful excuses for why you do this. Don't even do that, as there's no need for something like that. It is not up for discussion anymore.

Just. Stop. Just because I follow people quickly does NOT mean I'm a bot either, so please stop with your shitty games and phone verification and grow up.