

2027 Call for Panel Discussion: SAS Emotion Regulation Pre-conference

The 2027 SAS Emotion Regulation Pre-conference is calling for submissions in a 'panel discussion' format. This format is designed to feature discussions that push the emotion regulation field forward by engaging with theoretical developments and/or methodological advancements.

Successful submissions will feature a panel of 2-3 experts, along with a discussion moderator, who together will interrogate a current issue relevant to the study of emotion regulation or its applications to society at large (e.g., technological, political, or clinical impacts). The panel format will be allocated 50 minutes. Panel experts are encouraged to give short presentations (e.g., 5 minutes), with at least 30 minutes reserved for group discussion led by the moderator.

Submissions must include:

1. A title
2. Moderator name, affiliation, and career stage
3. Panelist names, affiliations, and career stages
4. Maximum 300 word summary outlining:
 - Description of the topic of discussion
 - Description of the relevance of the discussion to the Emotion Regulation Pre-conference audience
 - Key questions to be addressed during the discussion
 - Panelists' and moderator's qualifications to speak on the topic

We particularly encourage representative panel submissions that feature presenters at different career stages, institutions, academic perspectives, or feature other forms of diversity.

In order to diversify content across the preconference and main conference, we ask that speakers do not submit the same content to both forums.

Submissions should be sent to Razia Sahi at razia.sahi@rutgers.edu by October 1, 2026. Applicants will be notified of an outcome by October 31, 2026.
