Storying Sex Episode 0: Trailer

[00:00:00] Wil: Hi there! Welcome to Storying Sex, a podcast about queer sexual health and digital technologies. I'm one of your hosts, Wil Flores.

[00:00:14] McKinley: I'm your co-host at McKinley Green!

[00:00:16] Wil: And I'm an assistant professor of digital cultural rhetorics at the University of North Carolina Charlotte.

[00:00:22] McKinley: And I'm an assistant professor of English at George Mason University.

[00:00:27] Wil: We're two colleagues, queers, and friends who think can write a lot about queer sexual health, digital technology, and what it means to be healthy in today's platform economy.

[00:00:36] McKinley: We've learned a lot about these topics from our work and community-based health organizations, from our own experiences online and from our academic research around digital activism and sexual health.

[00:00:49] McKinley: So the goal of this podcast is to bring those sort of veins of critique together and to show how conversations are happening across community spaces and academic spaces. And to talk to people in both community spaces and academic spaces who are engaging with similar ideas.

[00:01:05] Wil: On that note, guests will comprise people from the academy, from community organizations across the United States, and from folks doing the work of queer sexual health, including sex workers, community organizers and more. So if this all sounds fascinating to you, as it does for us, stick around, we have some amazing episodes. If you'd like to learn more about the project and the podcast, check out our website at storyingsex.com. We'll have links to every episode and transcripts. In addition to other resources, such as readings and links to salient topics.

[00:01:38] McKinley: Additionally, we would love to hear from you. If you have any questions or would like to appear on the show, you can send us an email at storyingsex@gmail.com.

[00:01:46] Wil: So you would love to hear from you. So until then check out our website and enjoy the show!