1.3 LITERATURE REVIEW: DISCUSSION

For this research study, the author(s) had to review a range of literature sources relating to a particular research title and research problem. The approach followed with this assignment is that all relevant literature which were reviewed, were discussed in a tabular format; one table per source. In quintessence, all literature which were reviewed were first identified and described, from where its content were summarised by the author, using his/her own words.

It should be noted that each reviewed literature source was covered in a separate table. As an example, Table 1 is provided.

Table 1: Example of a reviewed literature source

Summary of what was read (own words)	According to Gerber (1995) a business, as a whole, is a vivid reflection of its respective owner(s). In core, this means that since the owner will have a certain personality; this personality will be reflected within the business. According to Briggs Myers and Myers (1995) a person's personality comprises of 8 'gears' of which 4 are 'polar opposites' of the other (i.e. Introvert and Extrovert; Sensing and Intuitive; Thinking and Feeling; Judging and Perceiving). Furthermore, Reiss (2000) states that apart from personality, a person also has 16 different areas of passion which he/she can strive towards, which makes up the "entrepreneurial mindset" of a person. In core, Bruwer (2012) found that the entrepreneurial mindset is of extreme importance for SMMEs to make 'ends meat' and that majority of SMMEs do, in fundamental nature, possess a distinct entrepreneurial mindset (Extrovert, Sensing, Thinking and Judging).

As from the next page onward, the literature which were reviewed for this research study are identified, described and summarised accordingly.
