

A thorough investigation of the explosion revealed that the ship that destroyed the Aen'q Tholis and warped to the Klingon sector of the Palgrenax system was the Romulan Warship known as the Bloodied Talon!

Communications with the Romulan Command got nowhere. The Romulans deny having any knowledge of the Bloodied Talon. As far as they were concerned the Bloodied Talon was supposed to be in Romulan space patrolling the neutral zone.

Admiral Reyes: And now that the Bloodied Talon is destroyed we have no evidence that the Romulans sent it here to spy on the Federation, the Tholians, and the Klingons. We all know that's what that ship was doing here but now we can't prove it.

Captain González: And just as is expected with a covert operation like spying, a good Romulan will commit suicide than be captured and interrogated.

Admiral Reyes: Exactly. So Captain, we extend our gratitude for all that you and your crew have done for us and our work here in the Taurus Reach. Starfleet has recalled your ship for another mission and they've sent us the USS Reliant to help the Endeavour keep studying the two planetary weapons we've discovered here. If those planets have such massive weapons then there must be something worthwhile there to protect.

Captain González: Aye Admiral. And good luck to you and the crews of the Endeavour and the Reliant. Let me know if we can be of service to you in the future.

After all the goodbyes with new friends made on Starbase 47 and the Endeavour, the crew of the Equinox head back to starfleet for their new mission.