

Problem: I am getting some replies to my outreach but not getting any positive ones. (email)

Role-playing method: I came to the conclusion that my outreach could be better so I tweaked it a little and I'll see if it's better that way.

Go through the Realist and Critic process: My email was not clear enough. It didn't create the curiosity to know more about what I'd do for them to start a conversation. My outreach is better this way because it is shorter, and clearer, and will make them want to email me back to know how I would do that for them.

Solution: Change my outreach a little bit to create more curiosity to make them want to know what I have to offer and start a conversation with me.
