

Dear [mention your friend's name],

Are you excited? I am sure you are! This is the day you have been waiting for all this while. I still can't believe that you actually made it happen when we all knew that you getting married to [mention the name of her spouse] is so impossible!

Seriously babe! You always hated him. You remember our college days? The moment I used to take his name, you used to go crazy with anger, saying all the nasty things that one can just imagine! You evil little thing, you didn't tell me when you started seeing him. I, out of all the people, got to know about him much later.

But let me tell you a secret today which I have hidden from you as well. I have always known that you are going to fall for him hard someday. I mean, the way you used to talk about him, even though it was nothing good but you always seem to get so much affected by just the mere mention of his name or presence alone, when you were actually always a calm and composed person! I knew that you secretly had feelings for [mention the name of her spouse].

I am so glad that you are finally getting married to the love of your life after dating him for like [mention the time period]. I hope this day brings a new and fresh yet beautiful change to your life. I sincerely wish that both of you live a happy married life always and live in peace together, forever. I hope I get to see your baby soon [laughs].

[mention your name]