

Hello Next Level Life,

I came across your channel while looking into finance and I like your style of teaching through drawings. It makes it easier to connect your words with the ideas behind them. As a visual learner it helps me a ton.

I completely agree with you that the education system let us down. People are lost and frustrated every day begging for guidance. You have the knowledge and the platform to help them.

However, there are 3 basic concepts that need to be followed to get people to listen to your authority. I follow them and other successful businesses take advantage of them as well. I'll refer to it as "The laws of value." Taking your ability of teaching others, magnify it, and expand.

They can be tricky to understand over writing. I have no problem talking to you for free about them. Which would be better: Thursday at 6 or Friday at 6:30?

All the best,
Isaiah