

My name is Sevara. I am 20 years old, born and raised in Tashkent.

My journey in music began in early childhood when I started playing the piano at the age of six. I received my formal education at the Republican Specialized Music School named after R. M. Glière, from which I successfully graduated.

Throughout my studies, I actively performed in concerts, festivals, and competitions, repeatedly becoming a laureate. These opportunities provided me with invaluable stage experience and helped me grow in confidence as an artist.

Currently, I am in my fourth year at the State Conservatory, where I continue to expand my knowledge of piano performance, music theory, and music history, while also engaging in both academic and concert activities. I am deeply passionate about developing as both a soloist and a chamber ensemble musician.

For me, music is a powerful form of expression, communication, and inspiration. I envision my future in concert performance, teaching, and creative musical projects.
