

The first time I walked into the ice boat barn at Rokeby (this was sometime in the early 90s) I was fascinated. Here was a treasure trove of antique yachts that each held a story and each deserved to be preserved. I'm working on stories and many folks continue to strive to preserve these relics from a time gone by. This page will document those boats found in barns that need some attention... Stories, as they are known, will be summarized as well.

Quite a collection of runners & All need sharpening! (This was back in early 90s)

*Comet (in red) and Rudolphe (to the right of Comet). Neither has seen the ice in over 25 years.
They are older, side rail type yachts.*

Rip Van Winkle, spars, planks, dust... Reindeer is to the left of Rip

Rip was moved spring of 2014 to get a new coat of varnish and a few minor repairs
