

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

My fellow Americans,

today I am happy to announce my run for re-election for President of the United States of America and my entrance into the Civic's presidential primary.

The United States of America has had to deal with two horrible administrations that have simply failed the public. In the last presidential election, I was able to win the popular vote of three states in this great country. Yet, due to unfortunate circumstances regarding how the electoral vote in the state of Chesapeake is handed out, I lost. That loss has not discouraged me from fighting for you. Since that loss, I have stayed in public service and have continued to this day to fight for all Americans across Atlantic and the country. I have stayed in public service because I know that I have not done enough and that my job is not over yet. The time for my retirement, as many expected me to do after I lost, is very far away from today.

During my first term as your president, I fought every day to ensure that all Americans had a voice in my administration. I kept my promises and promoted America at home and abroad. Under my administration, we saw massive success with our foreign affairs and were able to ensure that all Americans were taken care of properly at home. We were able to do things like re-negotiate awful deals made by former presidents and do great things like creating a new trade deal in Asia that is now in full effect and successfully countering China. We also protected all Americans' rights guaranteed by the Constitution whenever they were attacked and infringed upon by the Democrat and now-defunct Socialist agenda. My administration and I fought every single day to ensure that all Americans were appropriately represented in our government and in every decision that was made.

After I left office, former President Zero took over. After winning, he immediately ruined all of the progress we had made regarding foreign affairs and oversaw a Democrat trifecta that passed policies that only promoted the ideas of those on the left-wing of the political spectrum. Less than halfway through his term, his elected Vice President was appointed to the Supreme Court. He then chose Speaker of the House Ninjja to fill the position. Soon after he was confirmed, the president resigned from his post. That has left America with an unelected president. President Ninjja then signed multiple far-left pieces of legislation into law and has allowed policies and plans that our country cannot afford to become law.

President Ninjja has decided not to seek re-election. This has led to the Democrats being forced to find a new candidate and leaving this election completely open with no incumbent. This shows one clear thing. The Democrats do not know how to lead. The Democrats were granted the office of the presidency and abused it. They failed their voters, and in the last midterms, that was made clear when the coalition won the most combined votes for list seats and gained two Senate seats, which has cost them their Senate supermajority. Following other circumstances that show further Democrat failure, the coalition is now tied with the Democrats in the Senate.

We have seen bills like the Green New Deal and NHS Act become law. The American people have been stripped of their economic progress that my administration promoted and are stuck dealing with the policies of a party that only wants to win political points with the most left-wing of their supporters. The Democrat trifecta's policies have abandoned the moderates of the Democratic Party, centrists, and overall independents. They do not care about anyone but those that share their radical beliefs. They have truly failed the majority of America.

I am running to bring back the America that existed under my administration. The America that was respected worldwide and the America that promoted all Americans and did not have economically harmful policies enacted. All Americans deserve to live in a country that they can be proud of. A country that takes care of our citizens and even the planet without destroying our economy and raising your taxes. A country that does not send its military personnel into dangerous regions around the world for nothing more than political gain. We can make this happen.

I am promising to be a president, as I was before, for all Americans. I will fight to truly fix our immigration system, reform our education system, repeal the harmful laws and executive orders that have been enacted since I left office, and plenty more that I will discuss in my upcoming rally in New York City. I will always put the American people first in all of my decisions. I will once again allow all parties into my cabinet and ensure that I hear the views of all political sides of this country before making every decision as I have done before.

We cannot, as a nation, afford four more years of Democrat leadership in the White House. No matter the Democrat nominee for president, because they all will be the same. I will not abandon you as President Zero and President Ninjja have done. America needs leadership that we can trust, which is precisely the opposite of what we as a nation have now.

It is time that we create a future that we can believe in. May God bless you all, and may God bless the great United States of America.

Thank you.
