

Purpose and Mission

Welcome to [Your Community]! We are thrilled to give you a warm welcome to this space.

Our mission is to provide a space to discuss [what your community is about]. To that end, we will be working hard to ensure that we align our actions with that purpose. These Community Guidelines should not only help you understand how to act within the community but also help you understand what to expect from others in this space.

Guidelines

Help us stay organized

Before starting a thread, check which forum you're in and if the topic you are posting belongs there. If in doubt, message a community leader for help.

Be kind

Please be kind to other community members as we don't allow trolling or toxicity here. Other behavior we don't stand for includes hate, bullying, threats, violence, impersonation, and doxing. However, constructive feedback is encouraged. Avoid politics. These apply to off-site discussions like social media and we will take action against you on the website if we think it's necessary.

Spam and promotional content

Moderate promotional content is fine if you're an active member genuinely contributing to the community. Please disclose your relationship with a brand you link to or promote. We actively prevent and remove spam including ingenuine new members.

Intellectual property

Respect other people's copyrights, trademarks, and other legal rights by being mindful of what you post.

Obscene and illegal content

Sexual content, nudity, and illegal activity are prohibited and will be taken down immediately.

Reaching out to community leaders

If you have issues or complaints for community leaders, you need to take it up with them here, on the site, and not on their personal social media pages. You may get blocked from their personal social media if you do. Boundaries, please.

Reporting

Part of being a member of this community is saying something when you see something that doesn't look or sound right. Go ahead and report it by hitting the “report” button on the content in question. Community moderators will be notified, they’ll review it, and act according to these guidelines.

Consequences of violating these guidelines

The first time someone violates these guidelines, they get a reminder of our guidelines by a community leader and asked to not do it again. A warning of being banned will be given the second time. They will be banned from the website after the third offense.

Check out the FAQs page here if you have any questions or message a community leader.