From the above link: In 1892, Francis Bellamy created what was known as the Bellamy salute to accompany his own version of the Pledge of Allegiance. It started with the hand outstretched toward the flag, palm down, and ended with the palm up. Many decades later, during World War II, controversy arose because of the similarity between the Bellamy salute and the Nazi salute, which was adopted in Germany in the 1930s (although, unlike the Bellamy salute, this one did not end with the palm up). As a result, the US Congress stipulated that the hand-over-the-heart gesture would instead be rendered by civilians during the Pledge of Allegiance and the national anthem, thereby replacing the Bellamy salute. Removal of the Bellamy salute occurred on December 22, 1942.

Scam in History," page 14: "The U.S. government's mandatory schools adopted/ used the socialist "Bellamy/Nazi Salute" until 1943, at which point the crimes of the National Socialist 'Nazi' Party in Germany became apparent." After that, the right hand over the heart was adopted.
